Clemson vs. N.C. State

This is Clemson Football

Wynn Kopp 5

Senior Spotlight

Before this season began, Clemson punter Wynn Kopp told The State newspaper that he had been punting since he was in his diapers. That statement was hardly an exaggeration. He was raised in a family of punters and has his father and brothers to thank for encouraging his pursuit of a punting career.

Brian Mance 10-11

Senior Spotlight

In the small town of Manning, SC, a young boy dreamed of playing pro football like Jerry Rice. Years later, Brian Mance has a chance to do so, but on the defensive side of the ball. The cornerback has nine career interceptions on the field and has overcome tragedy off the field to shine for the Tigers.

Eric Meekins 14-15

Senior Spotlight

As one of Tommy Bowden's first recruits at Clemson, Eric Meekins has been a valuable member of the Tiger secondary for four seasons. His childhood friend, Justin Bray, both dreamed of playing football at Clemson, but Bray's life was tragically cut short. The Easley, SC native honors Bray by wearing #3.

Rod Gardner 49

Greatest ACC Performances

Clemson trailed 17-0 at North Carolina in 2000, but roared back to win 38-24 thanks to the heroics of Rod Gardner, who had the greatest game by a Tiger receiver in history that night. He had seven catches for 182 yards and three touchdowns, including spectacular catch after catch.

Anthony Simmons 64

ACC 50-Year Anniversary Player

Former Tiger great and current NFL linebacker Anthony Simmons has taken a different approach to his leisure time in the offseason. The ACC 50-Year Anniversary team member has returned to Tigertown each offseason to work with the Tiger strength staff and work toward his goal of earning a Clemson degree.

William Perry 119

ACC 50-Year Anniversary Player

There are countless stories to be told about former Tiger defensive lineman William "The Refrigerator" Perry. He is perhaps the most memorable player in Clemson history, and is known throughout the world thanks to his loveable personality, omnipresent smile, and a larger than life presence.

Both Teams Coming Off Close Home Victories

Clemson and N.C. State both enter this game coming off home victories by eight points or less. The Tigers defeated Wake Forest last Saturday, 31-23, while N.C. State downed Duke 24-22 in Raleigh.

Clemson trailed 23-14 in the third period and still faced a 23-21 deficit heading into the fourth period. But Clemson scored 10 points in the final period and held Wake Forest scoreless. Wake Forest trailed by eight and drove to the Clemson 18 with under two minutes left, but on a third-and-two play, Brian Mance stripped Chris Barclay inside the five-yard line. The ball rolled through the endzone and out the back for a Tiger touchback. Clemson ran out the final 1:15 to preserve the victory.

Clemson gave up 523 yards to Wake Forest, the most yards ever by a Tiger opponent in a Clemson win. But, the Tigers forced five second-half turnovers, three interceptions and two fumbles. Justin Miller, Mance, and Alroy Bodrick had interceptions, while Travis Pugh had a fumble recovery.

The victory was in direct contrast to Clemson's previous two games, which both ended in defeat. Clemson out-gained Florida State and Virginia by nearly 200 yards combined, but lost both of those games. Wake Forest had 243 more yards than Clemson, but the Tigers came away with the triumph.

N.C. State struggled with a Duke team that lost its 21st straight conference games. Duke scored a touchdown with 16 seconds left, then recovered an on-side kick. Duke ran off three more plays, but they were all incomplete passes. A 65-yard field goal fell short and N.C. State had its eighth-straight victory this season, its ninth in a row over Duke.

Philip Rivers, the nation's leader in passing efficiency, threw for a season-high 364 yards and two touchdowns to lead the way for the Wolfpack. He had a pair of 100-yard receivers in Jericho Cotchery and Sterling Hicks. Cotchery had 174 yards on six catches and a touchdown score. Both players caught 53-yard passes during the game.

Tigers Have Success vs. Ranked Pack Teams

Clemson has had some success against ranked N.C. State teams in the past. Clemson is 5-4 against top-25 Wolfpack teams, including winning four of the last five meetings when N.C. State has been ranked in the top 25. Three times Clemson has upset an N.C. State team ranked 12th or better, all games that took place at Clemson. N.C. State is ranked ninth in the USA Today Coaches poll this week and 12th by Associated Press.

In 1967, a Wolfpack team came to Clemson at 8-1. Current N.C. State Head Coach Chuck Amato was a starting defensive player on the #10 N.C. State team that started the year 8-0 before losing to Penn State the week prior to playing Clemson.

Buddy Gore, who has a son on the current Clemson roster by the same name, had 96 yards rushing and 28 receiving to lead the Tigers. He scored Clemson's first touchdown on a 28-yard reception from Jimmy Addison. It was the only touchdown reception of Gore's career and his first catch of the 1967 season (ninth game of the year). He had just seven catches his entire Clemson career, so you could call it a trick play of sorts. Clemson held the Wolfpack to 152 yards of total offense in gaining the 14-6 victory.

N.C. State was known for its "White Shoes" defense that year. Clemson Head Coach Frank True freshman cornerback Justin Miller had a key interception, his third of the year, in Clemson's 31-23 comeback victory over Wake Forest last Saturday. He was named ACC Rookie of the week.

Howard decided to answer with his own uniform ploy. He had his managers buy up all the orange paint in Clemson and painted his players' shoes orange.

Clemson also defeated #12 N.C. State teams in consecutive games in Death Valley. In 1989 and 1991, N.C. State entered Clemson both at 6-0, but each time Clemson came away victorious.

Danny Ford's last Clemson team ironically ended the season ranked 12th in the final poll at 10-2, and the 1989 victory over N.C. State had a lot to do with that. Clemson jumped out 14-0 in the first period and was never threatened. Joe Henderson led the way with 84 yards rushing on offense, while Dexter Davis had 10 tackles and an interception to lead the defense. Clemson's defense held the Wolfpack to 67 yards rushing and intercepted N.C. State quarterback Shane Montgomery three times.

Two years later, Ken Hatfield's second Tiger team pulled off the upset with a 29-19 win. Nelson Welch booted five field goals to set a Tiger record. The Tigers warmed up in orange jerseys, then appeared at the top of the Hill in purple. The Tigers jumped out to a 23-7 lead at halftime behind 297 yards of total offense. A touchdown on a fake field goal by Rudy Harris gave Clemson momentum early.

Clemson also gained victory over ranked N.C. State teams in 1993, a 20-14 victory at Clemson, and a 19-17 win in Raleigh in 1997. N.C. State was ranked 25th in the USA Today poll entering that game. The Tigers won on a 20-yard field goal by Matt Padgett with 19 seconds left.

Clemson's Highest Ranked Wins

A win for Clemson over #9 N.C. State would be the 11th win over a top-10 team in Clemson history, but just the third in Death Valley. Clemson defeated #4 Georgia 13-3 in 1981, #10 N.C. State in 1967 and #10 N.C. State in 1991 for its other home wins over top-10 teams.

Clemson has 10 top-10 wins in its history, seven of which have taken place on the opponents' home fields or in a bowl game. Clemson had three of them during its 1981 National Championship year.

Clemson has had 21 wins over top-25 teams since 1986 and has had at least one ranked win in 14 of the last 16 seasons. Tommy Bowden has defeated at least one ranked team each of his first three years at Clemson. The Tigers defeated Virginia 33-14 in 1999 when the Cavaliers were ranked 19th (USA Today), then downed #25 South Carolina in 2000. The Tigers then defeated #9 Georgia Tech in Atlanta last year. Clemson is 0-2 against top-20 teams this year, a loss at Georgia and a loss at Florida State. In both games, Clemson outgained the opposition, but lost.

Clemson Has Ended Perfect N.C. State Seasons

Four times since 1989, Clemson has ended an undefeated N.C. State season. Granted, one of the years we are counting is 1997, when N.C. State was just 2-0, but in three other recent seasons, Clemson has stopped Wolfpack perfect starts that have been 4-0 or better.

The last time N.C. State came to Clemson, the Wolfpack were 4-0 under first-year Head Coach Chuck Amato. Clemson came away with a 34-27 victory, giving Clemson a 7-0 mark at the time. In 1991 and 1989, N.C. State came to Clemson with a 6-0 record and left with a loss each time. The Wolfpack are 8-0 heading into tonight's game, its best start since 1967.

Clemson vs. N.C. State Series Notes

Clemson and N.C. State will do battle in the 22nd annual Textile Bowl when the two teams meet tonight. Clemson has a 15-6 advantage in the series since the game took on the Textile Bowl title in 1981, the year Clemson won the National Championship. The textile industry has a very important effect on the economy of North and South Carolina, and the two schools competing in tonight's game.

Overall, Clemson has a 44-25-1 lead in the series, including an 18-10 record in games played at Clemson. The Tigers are 15-10 against N.C. State in games played in Death Valley, and the Tigers have scored 499 points in those 25 games. Clemson is 11-1-1 against N.C. State in neutral site games and 15-14 in games at Raleigh over the years, including last year's 45-37 victory.

Many of the Textile Bowl contests have been close, including each of the last five, which each have been decided eight points or less. Five years ago in Raleigh, Matt Padgett booted a 20-yard field goal with just 19 seconds left to give Clemson a 19-17 victory. The Tigers drove 78 yards in 14 plays to set up the winning score. Nealon Greene hit 20-32 passes for 250 yards and Tony Horne caught eight passes for 112 to key the Clemson offense.

In 1998 at Clemson, Torry Holt completed an incredible day with a nine-yard scoring pass from Jamie Barnette with just 37 seconds left. It was his fourth touchdown reception of the day. He had 225 yards receiving in that game.

In 1999, N.C. State, behind Head Coach Mike O'Cain, defeated Clemson 35-31 in an exciting contest in Raleigh that featured 35 first-quarter points between the two teams. Clemson had five possessions in the fourth period with a chance to take the lead, but could not drive for a winning touchdown.

The 2000 game was a thriller that came down to the last possession before the Tigers came away with a 34-27 victory. Woodrow Dantzler completed 18-30 passes for 220 yards and also rushed for 103 yards and two touchdowns. Rod Gardner had 10 catches for 137 yards, while Travis Zachery added 31-147 and two scores.

Last year was the Dantzler show, as he gained 517 yards of total offense, an all-time Clemson record. He had a career-best 23-27 passing effort for 333 yards and four scores, and also rushed for 184 yards and two touchdowns. Still, it was a 45-37 outcome, as Philip Rivers had another outstanding passing game for N.C. State.

Another close game took place in 1993. Clemson held a 20-0 lead after three quarters thanks to an offense that gained 250 yards rushing, but had to hang on in the last minute to gain the victory. Tim Jones broke up each of the Wolfpack's last two pass plays at the Clemson goal line over the last 12 seconds of the contest to preserve the Tiger victory.

Both Teams Have Just Four Days to Prepare

Both teams enter this game after having played a game on Saturday. It is a quick turnaround for both teams. This is just the second time since 1933 that Clemson has played two games within five days.

The last time Clemson played two games within a five-day period was 1982. That year, Clemson opened the season on a Monday night on ABC with a loss at Georgia (13-7), then played at home against Boston College and Doug Flutie the following Saturday, a game that ended in a 17-17 tie. That was quite a challenge, as both teams ended the year in bowl games and were a combined 19-4-2. Clemson ran the table after that tie with Boston College and ended the season 9-1-1.

This is Clemson's fourth game on the ESPN Thursday-night package, but the first time the Tigers have had a quick turnaround. Clemson had previously always had the previous Saturday open. Clemson is 0-3 in its previous Thursday-night appearances, including a loss at Florida State this year. Clemson has not won a regular season game on Thursday since 1963, when it defeated South Carolina on Thanksgiving Day, a contest that was moved to that day due to the death of President John Kennedy.

Prior to 1982, one has to go all the way back to 1933 to find the last time Clemson played two games in five days. That year, Clemson defeated The Citadel on November 25, then lost to Furman five days later on November 30, 6-0.

The last time Clemson won a game on just four days rest was in 1929. Clemson defeated The Citadel 13-0 on November 23, then defeated Furman on November 28, 7-6.

Playing games in short-time periods was commonplace in the early days of college football. In fact, Clemson played three games in seven days twice, once in 1907 and once in 1911. Clemson lost to Auburn on November 4, lost to Georgia on November 7, and to Davidson on November 9 in 1907. The Tigers defeated South Carolina on November 2, defeated The Citadel on November 4, and lost to Georgia on November 9 in 1911.

Overall, Clemson has a 10-12-4 record in its history with five days or fewer in between games.

Last Four Meetings Have Featured Offense

The last four meetings between Clemson and N.C. State have featured high-powered offensive shows. In fact, the average score between the two teams in the last four meetings is Clemson 37 and N.C. State 36. Clemson has outscored the Wolfpack 149-145 in the last four meetings combined.

Last year's game featured 333 yards passing by Clemson and 331 by N.C. State, the only game in Clemson history in which both teams threw for at least 330 yards in the same game. Last year, the Tigers gained 567 yards of total offense in Raleigh, Clemson's highest total-offense figure in history on an opponent's home field.

In 1998, Clemson scored 39 points and lost, at the time the most points Clemson had ever scored in a loss. Clemson has scored at least 31 points in four straight games against N.C. State.

The two teams are 2-2 in those four games. N.C. State won in 1998 and 1999, and Clemson won in 2000 and 2001.

O'Cain Faces Former Team

Current Clemson Quarterbacks Coach Mike O'Cain will face a past employer this week. O'Cain, a 1977 Clemson graduate, served as head coach of N.C. State from 1993-99. He replaced Dick Sheridan at N.C. State in 1993 and took the Wolfpack to an 8-4 record, including a Peach Bowl invitation. The next year, he had N.C. State at 9-3 in the regular season, including a win over Clemson in Death Valley, the first Tiger graduate to defeat the Tigers.

His 1998 season included a win at Texas and a triumph over Florida State, just the second loss for Florida State in its ACC history dating to 1992. He took the Wolfpack to another bowl game in 1998, his third as head coach at N.C. State.

Last year, he coached the Tiger quarterback in the 45-37 victory over the Wolfpack. Clemson had 567 yards total offense in that game, including a school-record 517 yards from Woodrow Dantzler.

Ironically, one of O'Cain's top games as a player at Clemson came against N.C. State. In 1976, he rushed for 140 yards against N.C. State, the Clemson quarterback rushing record for a game until 1994. As a Tiger, he still ranks 14th in school history in passing efficiency.

Bowden and Amato Were on Same FSU Staff

Clemson Head Coach Tommy Bowden and N.C. State Head Coach Chuck Amato were both on Bobby Bowden's Florida State staff in 1982. That Florida State team finished 9-3, ranked 13th in the country, and appeared in the Gator Bowl. Bowden was a part-time coach working with the receivers, while Amato was a full-time coach in charge of the defensive line. Amato worked for the elder Bowden from 1982-99 before becoming the head coach at N.C. State in 2000.

Both coaches have had success early in their respective head-coaching careers. Bowden took Tulane to an undefeated 11-0 record in the regular season of 1998 and brought the Tigers to a top-15 final ranking in 2000 after an 8-0 start. Amato has taken N.C. State to a bowl game in each of his first two years and now has the Wolfpack at 8-0 and ranked in the top 10 in the nation.

N.C. State Update

N.C. State enters Death Valley with a perfect 8-0 record, tying for its best start in school history. N.C. State has achieved this record with outstanding performances on both sides of the ball and a timely special-teams unit that enjoys blocking punts.

Philip Rivers has been in the forefront of the N.C. State offense, a position he has held for the last three years. He has been ranked first or second in the nation in passing efficiency for much of the year, completing passes at a rate of 66 percent. He has even contributed from a running aspect, scoring seven touchdowns on the ground.

Rivers has played very well in two games against the Tigers, throwing for 680 yards. The winningest quarterback in the nation among juniors, Rivers is already second in N.C. State history in passing yards, completions, touchdown passes, and total offense. He already has the school record for 300-yard passing games.

What has made N.C. State an improved team is its running game. The Wolfpack now has balance thanks to the success of freshman T.A. McLendon. His 164 yards rushing against North Carolina tied for the 15th-best single-game mark in school history, and he is already fifth among freshman rushers in N.C. State history. He has 12 touchdowns for the season, already a top-five figure in Wolfpack history. He needs just five more for the overall school record. He burst on the national scene when he had 150 yards rushing and scored five touchdowns at Texas Tech.

N.C. State leads the ACC in total-offense margin, outgaining the opposition by over 120 yards per game.

Before this season began, Clemson punter Wynn Kopp told reporter Ken Tysiac of The State newspaper that he had been punting since he was in his diapers. That statement was hardly an exaggeration. He was raised in a family of punters and has his father and brothers to thank for encouraging his pursuit of a punting career.

David Kopp, Wynn's father, was a punter at Greene County (GA) High School in the 1960's. Rhett, who is two years older than Wynn, punted for Carson-Newman and has had tryouts in the NFL, most recently with the Saint Louis Rams.

"I have some great memories from the games we used to play in the backyard," Kopp said. "After the season was over, I remember putting on my cleats, going out in the snow, and kicking the football around. We used to have an annual two-on-two family game, and we would call it the 'Snow Bowl.'"

There were other times when Wynn and Rhett would play a game called "Puntback." They would stand apart in their backyard and punt to each other in a competition to see who could drive the other person further back into an imaginary endzone. During pickup football games, the two cherished the opportunity to kick the extra point after every touchdown. Both Kopp brothers saw this act as the ultimate reward.

"There were other times," Wynn added, "when we would stand on either end of our house and kick field goals to each other. Sometimes our efforts would not quite clear the rooftop, and you can imagine my mother was not too happy when that happened."

Kopp's childhood memories, pickup games, and experience had a significant impact on his football career. Determined to follow the same path that his father and brother chose, he established himself as a high-caliber punter at Clarke Central High School in Athens, GA. His efforts never relented, and as a result, he soon received the opportunity of a lifetime. As a freshman at the University of Georgia, he was offered a spot on the team as a walk-on.

After spending two years at Georgia, Kopp had made the best of his opportunity and had earned the starting job as punter. During the 1999 season, his sophomore year, he also proved to be one of the most difficult punters in the nation to return punts on. Kopp allowed only 11 return yards on 37 punts, and his net average per punt was just over 38 yards. Despite his impressive net average, however, Head Coach Jim Donnan denied Kopp a scholarship following the season, so he began looking for a new school to transfer to.

His ensuing search for a new opportunity landed him another chance to play collegiate football when his performance caught the attention of Clemson Head Coach Tommy Bowden. Clemson has not had a punter with at least a 38-yard net average per punt since 1990, when Chris Gardocki had a 40-yard net average. Gardocki is now playing with the Cleveland Browns, a Pro Bowl punter who holds the career net-average record for both the Indianapolis Colts and the Cleveland Browns.

Having noticed Wynn's impressive average, Bowden immediately offered Wynn a scholarship and a spot on the roster. After sitting out the 2000 season, Kopp started every game in 2001 and averaged 38.5 yards a boot. He had six games in which he averaged over 40 yards a punt and had a five-game stretch at midseason in which he allowed just three punt returns for 26 total return yards. He had a 45-yard average at N.C. State that was a key to Clemson's thrilling victory in Raleigh.

Kopp has played in three different bowl games in his career, two at Georgia and one at Clemson, and he has been on the winning side in all three contests. At Georgia, he played in a Peach Bowl victory over Virginia and the Hall of Fame Bowl victory over Purdue. He also served as the holder, therefore he was on the field when the Bulldogs kicked a last-second field goal to overcome a 25-point deficit over the Boilermakers, the greatest bowl comeback in college football history.

Kopp has strong respect for Coach Bowden and his approach to dealing with young men. "Coach Bowden is a different kind of coach," Kopp said. "He is very concerned with the physical, spiritual, and athletic needs of all of his players. I respect him for that reason."

Having captured both the starting job and the respect of his coach, Kopp sought other ways to pursue his love for punting. In collaboration with his father and brother, he published a book titled "Back to Punt: A Study of 481 Punts from the 2000 NFL Season." The co-authors spent countless hours diagramming virtually every conceivable characteristic of the 481 punts they reviewed. Their research covered direction, hang time, location, height, and distance.

The Kopp's book has been well accepted in many football circles. Several professional teams, including the 2000 Super Bowl Champion Baltimore Ravens, have purchased the book.

"We all agreed that there was a certain type of risk with longer punts," Kopp stated. "Traditionally, a punt is measured by its distance alone. Our main concerns were to cover as many aspects of a punt as possible, and to show people that there is a correlation between height and fewer returns."

After spending two years as the starting punter at Georgia, Wynn Kopp has brought his knowledge of punting to Clemson and has been the starter for the last two seasons.

Through determination, knowledge, and a youthful desire, Kopp has earned the punting job for both teams he has played for. Not only does he offer tremendous fortitude as a player, but he also offers an understanding for the act of punting that few others can boast.

His knowledge of punting has brought him respect from football coaches and personnel on all skill levels. As the co-author of his book, Kopp proves that his experience is not limited to the playing field. Amidst all of his achievements, he admits that he never could have reached this point of his career without spiritual support.

"I have been surrounded by a base of strong Christian men for a long time now," Kopp said. "I would like to thank Joey Haynes, Jon Sarratt, team chaplain Darren Bruce, and everyone else who has provided guidance and discipline. Words cannot express how important their help has been to me."

1st Quarter "The Early Years"

In the small town of Manning, SC, a young boy with the dream of playing pro football sprints down the football field during the first quarter. The wide receiver is too fast for anyone to catch, so he scores. He cannot wait to get back on offense again, so covering someone on defense is the last thing on his mind. He allows the other team to score so he can go back on the field again with the offense and once again run down the field as if he is Jerry Rice.

Brian Mance, a starting cornerback for the Tigers, grew up in Manning, SC in a family that cherished football. Mance's passion for football was a foregone conclusion considering his family background. Dave Waymer, a first-cousin, caught passes from Joe Montana as a starting wingback on Notre Dame's 1977 national championship team. He actually played against Clemson for the Irish that season. Waymer then played 13 NFL seasons with the New Orleans Saints, San Francisco 49ers, and Oakland Raiders.

At a young age, Mance knew football was his passion and the sport he was groomed to play. He grew up playing football in his grandmother's backyard in Florence, SC with many guys that went on to play college football. Blessed with athleticism, the nine-year old played with the 10- and 11-year-olds after his father, Kenneth, petitioned the local recreation program director to allow him to play.

Rice was not Mance's only childhood hero, his cousin was also a hero for the future Tiger. Waymer was Mance's role model.

"He was the guy everybody loved and looked up to in our family," said Mance. "He loved me and Kenny like we were his little brothers."

Through Waymer, Mance was able to meet Rice, a moment that a child will never forget.

However, tragedy struck the family in 1993 when Waymer, only 34 years of age, died of a heart attack while holding his 13-month-old son at his home in Moorefield, NC.

It was now time for Kenny to take Brian under his wings and show him the way. "My brother was there for me and told me to keep my head up."

Kenny and Brian Mance spent many childhood days playing football in their grandmother's backyard.

Those words would later guide the younger Mance through other obstacles he would face in life.

2nd Quarter "School Days"

As he comes to the sideline, Brian looks over to Kenny and sees a thumbs-up signal, which means that he did a great job out on the field. Later in the game, Brian looks over and sees a thumbs-down sign, a sign to motivate him to play to his full potential and his hardest, the play of a college athlete.

"My brother told me that he felt he was here to show me the way," explained Mance. "He made me play with older guys and made me lift weights to help me become a better athlete. He had already been through everything, so he could give me advice."

Kenny, a former football player at Charleston Southern, not only offered advice to his younger sibling, but he taught Mance the level of commitment needed to become a Division I student-athlete.

Mance recalled those late nights, when his brother told him they were going running the next morning or those afternoons that the two brothers went to lift weights in order to become a better athlete. "Kenny played the biggest impact on my athletic career because he gave me tips and taught me how to become a better athlete. In middle school, I began lifting weights, because everything he did, he made me do. He made me run with him when he would go in the mornings. He showed me the dedication needed to become a college athlete."

Like older siblings, Kenny showed Brian no sympathy. "He motivated me, but because he was my older brother he showed no pity on me. It did not matter if the score was 10-2 in a pickup game of basketball, he kept on me."

The time and effort that his brother and cousin put into football was witnessed by Mance, which enabled him to understand the intricacies of becoming a Division I student-athlete.

Mance finished his senior year of high school with 119 tackles and seven interceptions, while rushing for 758 yards with 10 touchdowns. Coming out of high school, Mance was rated the #4 player in South Carolina and #11 defensive back prospect in the nation according to SuperPrep. He was also rated at the #7 defensive back prospect in the Southeast by Southeastern Recruiting Alliance and was a Shrine Bowl selection.

Not only did he letter in football, but he also lettered in baseball four times, where he was an All-Region selection as a shortstop. He lettered in track four times and was the state champion in the 100 meters as a junior as well. But football was his passion.

All of the hard work that Mance put in throughout high school paid off, because he was recruited by many top college football program, such as Florida, Georgia, Notre Dame, Ohio State, South Carolina, and Tennessee. After some debate, Mance chose the Clemson program because it felt like home to him.

"Clemson is a small town like Manning, where football is the major thing in the town," explained Mance. "The guys on the team reminded me of my high school team. I wanted to come to a school where I could concentrate on my work and football, and be close enough to go home."

Kenny was a role model to the younger Brian in his teenage years and is still an inspiration today.

It would now be Brian's turn to shine on the college level, a level that he had worked hard to reach.

3rd Quarter "The College Years"

With six seconds left in the third quarter of the 2000 Georgia Tech game, Mance returns a punt for 88 yards for a touchdown, the longest by a Tiger since the 1991 season. After he sprints down the field dodging tackles, the tune of "Tiger Rag" resonates through Death Valley. It is a moment Mance will never forget.

"Three of my most memorable moments on the field at Clemson have been the kick returns against Georgia Tech and Florida State, and the three takeaways against Missouri in 2000," said Mance.

During the 2000 season, Mance was very productive during his 279 snaps on defense. He started three of the 12 games and tied the Clemson single-game record for takeaways with three in the win over Missouri. The member of LIFELINE ranked in the top 30 in the nation in both punt returns and kickoff returns in 2001. He was named ACC Defensive Back-of-the-Week after his performance against Central Florida as well.

But during his 2001 season, tragedy struck again when Mance lost his older brother, Kenny, his hero and close friend, in a car accident, an accident that happened just a few miles from his home. He was returning from watching Brian and the Tigers play at N.C. State.

Kenny was not just an older brother, he was a mentor, a friend, and a motivator. Mance has fond memories of his brother, and not a day goes by that he does not recall moments he shared with him.

"He watches over me everyday. Every five minutes I think about him, whether it be something he said or did, he stays on my mind."

Brian has two tattoos, including one that is in remembrance of Kenny. His left arm features a picture of praying hands with Kenny's name beneath, and "rest in peace" above the hands. A well-known Biblical scripture is written on his right arm. The scripture, Mance's philosophy on life, honors God as the source of his strength.

Reading the Word and knowing God would not put anything on him that he could not bear, helped him cope with the pain of Kenny's death. "My mom gave me Bible scriptures every week," said Mance. "We handled it together as a family and leaned on each other for support."

Mance's family not only has been there for emotional support, but they have played an important part in his athletic career. Kenneth and Georgia Mance travel to every game to watch their son play in the sport he loves so dearly.

"My mom and dad have to be my biggest fans," stated Mance. "They are at every game. I think if we played in Africa, they would be there too. I really appreciate their support."

Mance is very gracious and thankful for the support his parents have provided. He looks up to dad and hopes to one day be just like him.

"My dad is one of my heroes because I like everything about him. One of my goals in life is to be the man my father is. I want to be a family guy and after football have a respectful career."

Not only did Mance lean on his extended family during this tragic time in his life, but he also leaned on his Clemson family for support. "I was able to cope better when I returned to Clemson and was around the team. I was never alone."

However, Mance was not the only Tiger who was in need of support. Former teammate and travel roommate Kevin Johnson was coping with the pain of losing a close relative as well.

Mance and Johnson were each other's crutch during the midst of the 2001 season. Through the pain, each found comfort in talking to someone who was dealing with the same obstacles.

"I could not tell Kevin what to do, but I did tell him how I coped with the pain," said Mance.

"We both toughed it out together," said Johnson. "It was tough and hard on us and our families, but it brought us closer together."

This season, Mance has recorded four interceptions and now has 10 for his career, most among active Tigers. His aims are set high with goals of being named All-ACC and giving everything he has this season.

Mance credits defensive coordinator John Lovett with the success of the defense this season. "Coach Lovett is kind of like that cool gym teacher kind of coach. He is a teacher. He brought his game with him when he arrived and everyone on the defense put all their trust in him from the jump. One of his mottoes is that he is not asking anyone to put an "S" on his chest, meaning no one has to be superman out on the field. As long as I do my job and the guy beside me does his job and it keeps going down the line, then the job will get done. He has played a major role in the success of the team this year."

The respect between player and coach is mutual. "Brian is very easy to get along with, learns very quickly, and is very talented," said Lovett. "He has had to overcome adversity from last season, but made up his mind that he was going to have a good season and trained hard. He is a pleasure to coach and is a guy that is going to have a really good year."

4th Quarter "A Guiding Light"

It is the fourth quarter with five minutes left in the game. It has been an intense game and Mance has played almost every snap. He has a few minor nicks and bruises, and begins to tire. He glances down for a brief moment at the tape on his wrist and sees the letters "KWLTBH" written. This wristband message is not only in remembrance of a special person, but it is a reminder that "Kenny would love to be here." The pain is no longer there and he is no longer tired.

Mance will never forget his brother. The letters on his tape are just a small reminder of the bond that the brothers shared.

"My brother, he was at every game," Mance said. "That's how I feel now. I am not out there by myself because he is still out there at the game, still watching."

Kenny will always remain in Mance's heart and will always be given credit for showing him the way, and showing him the dedication needed to become a college athlete. Mance's determination and tireless work ethic will guide him through the next phase of his life. He is on his way to receiving his degree in education and still holds the dream of one day playing in the NFL, a place that he and Kenny dreamed of as children when playing in their grandmother's yard.

The light that shines through Brian Mance is bright and will undoubtedly touch the lives of others, like his brother, Kenny, touched his.

Samantha Carruth, a second-year graduate student from Landrum, SC, is a graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office. Special thanks to Georgia Mance for providing the pictures of her sons.

Mance has 10 career interceptions and ranks tied for ninth in that category in Clemson history.

When strong safety Eric Meekins dreamed of playing football at Clemson, his vision included playing with his childhood friend, Justin Bray. Meekins and Bray had known each other since the days of little league and they played football together at Easley High School. Bray was hoping to walk on Clemson's football team, where Meekins was being recruited.

But Bray never made it to the Clemson campus. His life was tragically taken in a car accident while he was delivering newspapers in June of 1999.

When participating in athletics, Bray always wore #3.

When Meekins arrived at Clemson in the fall of 1999, just months after his friend's death, he was assigned #2, and then freshman cornerback Brian Mance was given #3. After the 1999 season, when Mance was made aware of the story, the two players switched numbers.

"I wanted to do something to keep his memory alive," said Meekins. "It is my small way of letting his dad know, as Justin's good friend, I will honor him by wearing his number."

Meekins also writes "JB3" on his wristband before every game. "I just keep him with me and realize how blessed I am to be here," explained Meekins to The State newspaper earlier this year. "I realize that I could have been gone like him any amount of times. So I just look at it as if it was just his time to go, but I'm here for him. I'm here for both of us, keeping his spirit alive and just showing his love that he had for Clemson."

The third of four brothers, family is a key word in Meekins's vocabulary. It was with his younger brother that he started playing football when he was 12-years old. And it was because of his family that the youngster from Easley, SC chose to go to Clemson, staying closer to home, rather than attending South Carolina, Virginia Tech, Minnesota, or West Virginia.

Meekins appreciates the value of, "Always having someone there for you." His older brothers travel up from Atlanta almost every weekend to see him play.

"They ask me how I'm doing, what I'm thinking about this week's game," said Meekins. "They are really involved. I know that if I need anything, I can call them and they will be there for me."

The fifth-leading tackler from his defensive position as strong safety this year, Meekins began his football career as a runningback in high school. During his senior year at Easley High School, he rushed for 2,415 yards and scored 24 touchdowns in 14 games. As a part-time defensive back his senior season, he had 41 tackles and 5 interceptions.

Meekins's all-around talents earned him a selection to the all-state and Shrine Bowl teams as a defensive back, however scouts projected that he might play wide receiver or possibly grow into a linebacker at the college level.

Still, Meekins is excited to be on the team at any position. "I look at it as being a blessing to even play, and I have started; ultimately you are doing this for the team."

Meekins had a strong start to his Clemson career, as he saw considerable action as a freshman in the 1999 season opener against Marshall,

Head Coach Tommy Bowden's first game as Clemson head coach. He played the strong safety position, replacing an injured DoMarco Fox.

In that first game, Meekins had seven of his 19 tackles that season and played 52 of his 93 snaps on defense. "It was my first college game, it was a highly-ranked opponent that ended the regular season undefeated, and it was the first game with Coach Bowden," he said. "It was a memorable night."

"I remember getting out of the bus, seeing all that orange and a little spot of green to the right. There was just so much excitement."

He also played linebacker and safety during that first season as a Tiger. It was not until the 2001 season that Meekins became a starter at strong safety position.

Meekins played second-team strong safety behind Charles Hufley during the entire 2000 season. He had 14 of his 16 tackles within the first five games. Meekins played 20 snaps when Clemson went to a fifth defensive back versus Georgia Tech.

That position has not held Meekins back from returning to his running roots. Last year against Wofford, he had a 29-yard fumble return for a touchdown, at the time the longest fumble return by a Clemson player in the Tommy Bowden era.

"As a defensive player, you rarely get a chance to score a touchdown," said Meekins. "And once I saw that ball lying there on the ground, I kept praying that no one else would pick it up. Once I picked it up and saw nobody was around, I ran and scored a touchdown. That's something that will always be in the records with my name, no matter how small it is, it is part of Clemson history."

Meekins had 72 tackles in the 12 games of 2001, a season in which he started nine games. He started in the season opener against Central Florida and had seven tackles in 53 plays, the same total he accumulated in the opener of the 1999 season.

He did not start in the Wofford game, but after scoring the touchdown for the Tigers and the career-ending injury of Marcus Houskin, Meekins was moved back into the starting lineup for the Virginia game.

In the Wake Forest game, Meekins had a career-high 13 tackles, a performance that was essential to the 21-14 win over the run-oriented Demon Deacons. Three of his four pass breakups for the season came against N.C. State, another close victory, and he had six hits in 77 plays in that game.

He consistently performed well during the 2001 season, with at least five tackles in 10 of the 12 games. With just 16 tackles in 2000, he increased that figure four-fold as a junior.

Preseason predictions that Meekins would be a key to the defense are proving to be true. After the Florida State game on October 3, Meekins stood third on the team in tackles, just behind John Leake, who had 61, and Rodney Thomas, who had 60. Meekins had 46 total tackles through five games, with 29 first hits.

During the spring season of 2001, Meekins suffered a major injury. He suffered a non-displaced crack in a bone in his knee in the March 31 scrimmage that forced him to have surgery, missing the spring game. He realized for the first time how quickly the ability to play football could be taken away from him, and thus he cherishes every opportunity he has on the field.

"It can be taken from you so fast," stated Meekins. "It makes you realize that in one instant it could be all over; it made me realize how blessed I am to play and that I have been able to stay away from injuries. Most people think that they're invincible, but that brought me back down and reminded me to continue to work hard."

Meekins may have another opportunity to be immortalized in the Clemson record books. At the end of last season, he had never missed a game and therefore had participated in 36 during his first three seasons. If his season continues to remain injury-free, he plays in every game, and the Tigers play in a bowl game, Meekins will set the record for most games played by a Tiger.

Meekins attitude about life and football was clearly established by his family during his upbringing. During his freshmen year, when Meekins wanted to quit the game, it was his family that stressed the importance that he stick with it, to continue to work hard.

He was taught, "to strive and be the best, to never quit, and primarily trust God," said his mother, Mary Meekins. "Family was a big part of our life, whatever we were doing. It taught him to be a part of a group, to be patient and understanding; basically to love God and to love people."

His mother's goal for their family and her influence in his life is reflected in Meekins' personal goal. "I just hope to be the best player that I can be and to not let myself think that I am too good for anybody," he said. "God gave me this ability and I should take it for what it is worth."

Playing football has been a learning experience for Meekins. Things have not always gone as he expected or hoped.

"I think it just makes you tough...whatever does not kill you makes you stronger - I live by that," said Meekins.

His attitude to take struggles and learn from them helps Meekins to keep going when others stumble.

A professional role model for Meekins is Michael Jordan. "He is always intense," he remarked. "He is not going to let just anyone beat him; and if they do, he will not let it happen a second time."

That intensity he sees in Jordan is something he will need to demonstrate in his play on the football field in order to one day achieve his dream of playing in the NFL. Meekins sees beyond the fame and glamour of professional athletics, but hopes that working on that level will help him to take care of his family.

"It opens so many doors," said Meekins.

Clemson football is in new territory this year, as the team is almost entirely composed of Tommy Bowden recruits. Like others, Meekins is excited about the dynamics of this year's freshman class and what they are bringing to the team.

"This is our key-developing class. We are trying to catch up with national powerhouse teams that year-in and year-out are at the top. That is what we want to be. We are just going to keep on going until we are one of the best teams in the nation."

Seeing players, like Justin Miller, who is making plays as a true freshmen and living up to the expectations placed on him during recruitment, give Meekins hope when looking at the future of Tiger football, a future he cares about greatly.

Team goals to keep the focus in that direction include improving game-in and game-out, always playing better, winning an ACC championship, and eventually winning the National Championship. One of President Jim Barker's goals in his 10-year plan for the Clemson Athletic Department includes winning a national championship on the gridiron.

As a senior on the team and a starting defensive player, Meekins knows the freshmen are looking to him as a leader. As a player who has been there before and has good understanding of what to expect in different situations, he enjoys the opportunity to provide guidance to the younger players.

"It is an honor for people to look at you as a leader," Meekins said. "You show people (that) I did this my freshmen year or my sophomore year, and this is what I learned from it. I tell people to never put your head down, because things are not always going to go right."

One place it is clear Meekins does not have to worry about being put down is at home. A home where his mother inspires him and his family supports him has provided the right environment for him to grow. As Meekins parents watch him on the field, they feel a strong sense of pride.

"I am thankful that he has taken his God-given ability and made the best out of it," said his mother.

She is confident he will have success in his pursuits. "Eric has character. So whatever Eric does, he is going to be good at it."

Kelly McGinity, a first-year graduate student from Timonium, MD, is a graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Eric Meekins has stalked opposing offenses for four seasons, totaling over 150 tackles. The Easley, SC native has a chance to break the Clemson career record for games played (48) if the Tigers play in a bowl game this season.

Building a Future for Clemson

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson University and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in Saint Louis, MO. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

He has been awarded honorary doctoral degrees from S.C. State University and Mars Hill College, and has served on the Truman Scholars selection committee. He currently serves on the Commission of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the region's accrediting agency.

At Clemson, Barker co-founded the South Carolina Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university's "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors' Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. Each spring, he is part of a team that teaches an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

Success in athletics is important to Barker. The former high jumper at Clemson is omnipresent at Tiger athletic events and follows all of the school's programs closely. He recently directly chaired the three-person committee that hired new athletic director Terry Don Phillips.

Barker's Goals by 2010

Academics, Research, and Service

1. Excel in teaching, at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.
2. Increase research and sponsored programs to exceed $100 million a year in research support.
3. Set the standard in public service for land-grant universities by engaging the whole campus in service and outreach, including a focus on strategic emphasis areas.
4. Foster Clemson's academic reputation through strong academic programs, mission-oriented research and academic centers of excellence, relevant public service, and highly regarded faculty and staff.
5. Seek and cultivate areas where teaching, research, and service overlap.

Campus Life

1. Strengthen our sense of community and increase our diversity.
2. Recognize & appreciate Clemson's distinctiveness.
3. Create greater awareness of international programs and increase activity in this area.
4. Increase our focus on collaboration.
5. Maintain an environment that is healthy, safe, and attractive.

Student Performance

1. Attract more students who are ranked in the top 10 percent of their high school classes and who perform exceptionally well on the SAT/ACT.
2. Promote high graduation rates by increasing freshman retention, meeting expectations of high achievers, and providing support systems for all students.
3. Promote excellence in advising.
4. Increase the annual number of doctoral graduates to the level of a top-20 public research university.
5. Improve the national competitiveness of graduate student admissions and financial aid.

Educational Resources

1. Campaign goal surpassed by 40 percent.
2. Rededicate our energy and resources to improving the library.
3. Increase faculty compensation to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
4. Increase academic expenditures per student to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
5. Manage enrollment to ensure the highest quality classroom experiences.

Clemson's National Reputation

1. Promote high integrity and professional demeanor among all members of the University community.
2. Establish a Phi Beta Kappa chapter.
3. Have at least two Clemson students win Rhodes Scholarships.
4. Send student ensembles to perform at Carnegie Hall.
5. Have at least two Clemson faculty win recognition by national academies.
6. Publicize both national and international accomplishments of faculty, staff, and students.
7. While maintaining full compliance, achieve notable recognition with another national football championship, two championships in Olympic sports, and two Final Four appearances in basketball.

The Barkers, Jim and Marcia, have two sons, 18-year-old Britt, a senior at Daniel High School in Clemson, and Jacob, 28, who works for an advertising agency in Greenville, SC. Jacob received his undergraduate degree from North Carolina, where he was also a member of the baseball team. He earned his master's degree from Clemson in 2002 and worked in the sports information office while he was pursuing that degree.

Barker attended the National Football Foundation and College Football Hall of Fame Banquet in New York in 2001. Above he poses with Tiger honorees Terry Kinard and Kyle Young.

A New Era Begins

Terry Don Phillips is the newest addition to the Clemson athletic family, but he is no stranger to the world of college athletics. The long-time administrator and teacher is charged with the duty of leading Clemson into the new millennium. He will undoubtedly call on his vast experience in all areas of athletic administration to address the challenges set forth in the University's vision statement to become a top-20 public university. He began his tenure as Clemson's 10th athletic director on July 1, 2002.

The three-person committee charged with finding a replacement for retiring 17-year Athletic Director Bobby Robinson found a perfect match for Clemson University in Phillips. His resume is one of the most impressive, well-rounded personal documents in college athletics.

Academically, Phillips has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master's degree from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar and the American Bar Association. Phillips has also served in an adjunct faculty role at his previous stops and plans to continue to teach a course in legal studies at Clemson.

From an experience standpoint, Phillips has worked in just about all phases of college athletics. He served as an assistant football coach at Virginia Tech, supervised Spring sports and student-athlete enrichment at Florida, handled athletic fundraising and facility enhancement at Missouri and Arkansas, and has 15 years experience as an athletic director, including 13 at the Division I level.

When it comes to success on the field and in the classroom, Phillips' programs have been among the best in the nation. The achievements of the Oklahoma State program during his tenure (1994-02) included a pair of national championships in men's golf, a men's basketball Final Four, two trips to the College World Series, 13 Big 12 Championships, and 11 individual national champions. Academically, it had 53 academic All-Americans from 1995-02.

Phillips knows the importance of rivalries and Oklahoma State notched four football wins over arch-enemy Oklahoma in his tenure in Stillwater, including a 16-13 victory in 2001 against the defending national champion and #4 Sooners. Before his arrival in 1995, the Cowboys had just three wins over Oklahoma in the previous 48 years. The Cowboys also won the first-ever Bedlam Championship in 2001, the all-sports competition between the two.

From a facilities enhancement standpoint, Phillips has significant experience, an important aspect to his new job at Clemson, where facilities improvements and corresponding fund-raising challenges command his attention immediately.

In Stillwater, the program compiled a long list of successful facilities projects, including the completion of nearly $65 million in new construction.

Gallagher-Iba Arena, the Cowboys' basketball arena, was expanded from 6,000 to 13,611 seats, and 14 suites were added. It was named the best college venue in the nation by CBS Sportsline. An equestrian center, softball stadium, women's soccer complex, golf training facility, and indoor baseball/softball facility were also a part of a broad range of facility improvements.

Phillips also supervised the planning of a $50 million renovation to Oklahoma State's football stadium that will add 2,300 club seats, 10 suites, and rebuilt concession, restrooms, press, and concourse areas. Additionally, Phillips and his staff raised approximately $20 million for capital projects, the most in the school's history, a $9 million budget growth to nearly $23 million, and a $1 million deficit reduction while expanding programs to conform with Title IX.

The Longview, TX native also knows how to attract and lead members of his community. He initiated the Orange Peel Rally, a student-produced spirit rally before the first Oklahoma State home football game that averaged approximately 20,000 in attendance. His blueprint for the event was Clemson's Tigerama, which had impressed him in 1978 when he made his first trip to Clemson with the Virginia Tech football team. The athletic program also started the Best of America Rally that introduced grade-school age youngsters to Oklahoma State University.

Phillips is the Chair of the NCAA Division I Infractions Appeals Committee, which serves the appellate role for all University and individual appeals arising from the Committee on Infractions. He also serves on the Olympic Sports Liaison Committee. He served the Big 12 Conference on the Board of Athletic Directors, Bowl Subcommittee, and Post-Graduate Scholarship and Television Committees.

Before leading Oklahoma State, Phillips served as senior associate athletic director at Arkansas from 1988-94. He ran the daily operations and had oversight of facility projects for the men's programs, and was president of the Razorback Foundation.

Phillips was also athletic director of the University of Southwestern Louisiana from 1983-88 and Liberty College from 1980-81. He was an assistant athletic director at Missouri from 1981-83 where he supervised athletic fund-raising. George Bennett, current Clemson Executive Director of IPTAY and a leader in that field, met with Phillips when he first accepted that position. Phillips began his administrative career in 1978 as an assistant athletic director at Florida, where he worked with Spring sports and student-athlete enrichment.

Phillips also has considerable experience in coaching. He began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Arkansas from 1970-71. He then moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach from 1971-78 before joining the ranks of athletic administration. During his coaching career there, he served with former Clemson Head Coaches Charley Pell and Danny Ford, and worked directly under former Tiger defensive coordinator Tom Harper.

Winning has been in Phillips' resume since his playing days. At Arkansas, Phillips lettered on Frank Broyles teams of 1966, 1968, and 1969. The Razorbacks were a combined 27-5 in those three seasons and played in two Sugar Bowl games. Phillips played for the Razorbacks in the famous 1969 Arkansas-Texas game that decided the National Championship. One of the assistant coaches on the 1968 and 1969 Arkansas teams was former Clemson Head Coach Hootie Ingram.

Phillips has two children, John Dennis (25) and Sarah Jane (21). He has three step-children, Meagan (13), Marshall (12), and Madison (10). He is married to Tricia Phillips.

Terry Don Phillips, his wife Tricia and children Meagan, Marshall and Madison are in their first football season at Clemson.

4th Year Head Coach

When Clemson was selected for the 2001 Crucial.com Humanitarian Bowl, it meant that the Tigers would be making their third straight bowl appearance - the third under Head Coach Tommy Bowden. With that selection, he became the first head coach to take Clemson to a bowl game in each of his first three seasons. That is something that prominent predecessors Jess Neely, Frank Howard, Charley Pell, Danny Ford, and Ken Hatfield failed to do. Under Bowden's direction, Clemson appeared in the Peach Bowl in 1999 and in the Gator Bowl in 2000 prior to its Humanitarian Bowl appearance.

Clemson made the most of that 2001 bowl appearance, defeating Louisiana Tech, 49-24 on New Year's Eve, Clemson's first bowl win since 1993. Clemson set school bowl records for points scored, touchdowns, and total offense in a bowl game in the victory. The Tigers threw five touchdown passes, a record for any Clemson game. The Clemson defense also limited the effectiveness of Louisiana Tech's nationally ranked offense, as the defense held Tech to but 10 points and 270 yards before reserves were summoned to the contest on both sides.

It was a record-breaking performance for the Tigers in Boise, ID, something that surprised no one who has followed the Tigers the last three seasons. In that short period of time, Clemson has set over 125 school records on an individual and team basis. Three of the top five total-offense seasons in school history have been recorded under Bowden, including the 2001 season when Clemson averaged over 30 points and 432 yards of total offense.

The 2001 season demonstrated Bowden's ability to win in the long run, as he had the second-youngest two-deep in the ACC. Thirty-four of his top 44 players were underclassmen. Only Duke had a younger group of top 44 players. Fourteen different freshmen saw action in 2001, including 10 who played in at least 10 games. Ten Clemson freshman records have been set under Bowden in his short tenure. In 2001, freshmen receivers caught 106 passes, while freshmen defensive players combined for 173 tackles and 15 tackles for loss.

Bowden has a record of 22-14 entering the 2002 season as Clemson's head coach. He has recorded that ledger against a difficult schedule. His first year, Clemson's schedule was ranked in the top 10 in the nation. In 2001, his team defeated five teams that finished the season with a winning record, tied for the third-highest single-season figure in school history. One of the wins was a 47-44 overtime triumph at #9 Georgia Tech. It was Clemson's highest-ranked road win in 20 years.

He has also gained that record with a group of overachieving players. Of the 25 teams who have been to a bowl game each of the last three years, only East Carolina (two) has had fewer players drafted than Clemson (three) over that period. Two of the years Clemson has advanced to a bowl game under Bowden, Clemson did not have any players drafted (1999 and 2001).

When Bowden came to Clemson in 1998, he inherited a team with a 3-8 record. By late October of 2000, just 14 months after his first game, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today poll after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Making a swift improvement is nothing new for Bowden. In 1997, he took over a 4-7 Tulane program and brought the Green Wave to a 7-4 mark in his first year. In 1998, the improvement continued with an 11-0 regular season and #7 national ranking. In 1999, Bowden elevated the Tigers from 3-8 to a bowl game and a 6-6 final record. The 2000 Tigers concluded the season with a 9-3 record, its highest win total since 1993.

As you can see, considerable improvement is a common phrase for Tommy Bowden coached teams. In each of his first four years he has coached at the Division I level, his team showed at least a three-win improvement over the previous year, believed to be a first in Division I college football history. Bowden is just the third coach in Clemson history to bring the Tigers to a three-win improvement in consecutive years and was one of just two Division I coaches (John Robinson of UNLV) to do it over the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

Bowden's second Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Tigers were finalists or semi-finalist for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three finalists for the Butkus Award.

Kyle Young and Chad Carson were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year, the football team had its highest team GPA on record and a record number of ACC Academic honor-roll recipients. Eighteen of the 22 seniors on the 2001 team have already earned their degrees and two more will join them this year. The top-five semester GPAs on record have taken place under his seven-semester watch. Carson brought pride to the entire University last winter when he reached the final stage of the Rhodes Scholarship selection process.

The Bowden family: Lauren, Tommy, Linda, and Ryan.

Head Coach Tommy Bowden

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal - improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation's third-toughest regular-season schedule according to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over 1998, the greatest one-season jump in ACC history in league play.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an innovative offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson's 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history. Clemson has exceeded that touchdown total each of the last two years.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top-four tacklers in the league.

Adams, a sophomore that season, finished with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single-season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Four of Clemson's losses in 1999 came against teams ranked in the top 15 of the final AP poll. Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby's top-ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest points they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark, and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses, and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn't take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane's accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but its offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the nation's only school to average over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. Tulane ranked fourth nationally in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game, the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays. The 1998 season saw Tulane post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden's team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979, and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated Brigham Young in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. The Bowdens are the first family of college coaching, and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC's college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his eighth year as wide receivers coach at Florida State, his second as offensive coordinator.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior, he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a graduate assistant. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life's work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record, and won a Gator Bowl championship.

In 1983, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils' quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to the NFL.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Tide offensive coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator role, serving Kentucky as offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That year, he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with Auburn for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top-25 seasons, including a #4 final ranking in 1993 and a #9 final rating in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined. Bowden worked under his brother, Terry, for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown (WV) High. The couple has two children, Ryan (20), a junior at Clemson, and Lauren (17) a senior at nearby Daniel High.

O'Cain Highlights

In his first season as a head coach at N.C. State, he was the only rookie coach in the nation that year to take a team to a bowl game. O'Cain led N.C. State to nine wins in 1993, tied for the most wins in school history. His 10 ACC wins during his first two seasons are the best ever for a Wolfpack coach in his first two campaigns. O'Cain and Lou Holtz (1972-75) are the only coaches in N.C. State history to take a team to a bowl in their first two seasons with the program. Coached N.C. State to three bowl games. Had a 41-40 overall head coaching record at N.C. State. One of those victories was in 1998 over Florida State, one of two ACC losses for the Seminoles since they joined the league in 1992. Recruited and coached NFL star Torry Holt while at N.C. State. Quarterbacked Orangeburg-Wilkinson High (the same high school as former Clemson quarterback Woodrow Dantzler) to a 13-0 record, a state 4A title, and #12 national ranking his senior year. His first coaching job came as a graduate assistant at Clemson in 1977, where he coached the running backs...was a big reason Woodrow Dantzler was able to become the first NCAA Division I player to pass for 2,000 yards and rush for 1,000 in a single season in 2001.

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in the nation in average attendance 19 consecutive seasons.

In the 70s, 80s, and 90s, various publications named top-10 stadiums in college football and Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as "Death Valley," has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 211 games in the previous 60 years there (211-84-7) and has won over 71 percent of the contests. Thirty-six times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus.

The place would take some clearing-there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson thrashing Presbyterian, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of as crowds swelled - the first in 1978 and the second in '83. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the largest on-campus stadiums.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

In 1974, the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

"When you get to the bottom of the hill, it's like you're in a hole and all around you are nothing but Clemson fans. Its like the crowd is one big voice. You feel like little kings."

Former Clemson running back Rodney Blunt

"Running down the hill is still talked about everywhere I go. Players who played against Clemson when I was in college remember us running the hill and thinking we would gain some type of spirit. The adrenalin rush was unbelievable for a Clemson player and quite a shock for the opponent."

Former Clemson All-American Jerry Butler

"There is no place louder or more picturesque than Death Valley. There, where Clemson folks see magic in a hill and a rock, orange gets more respect than anywhere this side of Gainesville, Florida."

Terence Moore, Atlanta Constitution

"The rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the hill, the adrenaline flows. Its the most emotional experience I've ever had."

Six-time All-Pro and former Clemson All-American Michael Dean Perry

"Florida was loud in the swamp. But, the loudest, not only the stadium, but the loudest place I have ever been around in my life was definitely Death Valley. I was yelling at the top of my lungs in that first series and I couldn't even hear what I was saying. My voice was gone after the second series, so we had to signal everything. That place was unreal in how loud it was. I don't think I will ever be in a louder place than Clemson."

Florida State Quarterback Chris Rix, 2001

"Clemson's record at home is not a coincidence. Running down the hill is a part of that record. You get so inspired, and so much of college football is about emotion. You get out of that bus and you hear the roar of the crowd and it gives you chills up and down your spine."

Former Clemson All-America kicker David Treadwell

"I came here knowing it would be loud and that Clemson would hit me hard, but to me, the noise was the biggest factor. I know I didn't concentrate as well because of it."

Herschel Walker after Clemson's 13-3 victory in 1981, his only regular season loss at Georgia.

"Death Valley really lives up to its image. I was impressed with this stadium. When you put 80,000 people in there, it really feels like they are on top of you. I would hate to be Georgia Tech or whoever else comes in here."

San Francisco 49ers Quarterback Steve Young

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Clemson Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season. Less than a year before Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was at war.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Fike Fieldhouse's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities in the west end zone - there was only a big clock where the hands turned and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no tiger paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the Clemson class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA, and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA, to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike for a year or more. One day Howard was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was the executive secretary of IPTAY, to, "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office."

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. Afterall, it had been brought 3000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-sixties, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shut-outs in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948 McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it 'Death Valley' in the 1950's, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the 'valley' in 1991.

But getting back to Howard's rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

Running Down the Hill

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the hill that day, Howard told his players: "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it." Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west end zone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the hill, their record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above - 286 times heading into the 2002 season.

After Clemson's final warm-up, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west end zone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east end zone and debarks to the top of the hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying tiger paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up 'Tiger Rag'...The frenzy starts in all sincerity...and usually lasts two and a half to three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

"When Clemson players rub that rock and run down the hill, it's the most exciting 25 seconds in college football."

Driving the Carolinas

by Philip Sikes

Note: Each program this year, we will review the greatest games in Clemson history by position. Today we recall the greatest game in history by a Clemson wide receiver.

Rod Gardner's career at Clemson was so incredible that it would be difficult to pinpoint his most defining moment. He made a habit out of taking over a game when the Tigers needed him the most. His heroics in the Clemson-South Carolina rivalry have been well documented around these parts. But on October 21, 2000, Gardner may have played his greatest game in a Tiger uniform at Chapel Hill, NC.

With Clemson trailing North Carolina 17-0 in the second quarter, and an undefeated record and top-five national ranking hanging in the balance, Gardner turned in the greatest performance ever by a Clemson wide receiver. Gardner, a former high school quarterback from Jacksonville, FL, came up with one big play after another against the Tar Heels.

Gardner's awesome performance got off to a rough start. The Tigers were held scoreless 18 minutes into the game, then starting quarterback Woodrow Dantzler left with an ankle injury. Most believed the game was over after the Tigers' star went down.

"I think that game showed everyone what kind of player Rod was," Clemson Head Coach Tommy Bowden said. "With Woody out, we needed someone to step up. Rod was the obvious choice. He just took over."

Entering the game at quarterback was red-shirt freshman Willie Simmons, who had never been in an adverse situation like that at Clemson. Bowden and his staff probably wondered how his players would respond to the new quarterback. The players rallied around Simmons, and Gardner played an integral role in the Tigers' comeback.

Gardner's first strike of the contest came with only one minute left in the first half. Gardner caught a 20-yard touchdown pass from Simmons to pull the Tigers within three heading into the locker room. He finished the first half with four catches for 80 yards to lead the Clemson receiving corps. More importantly, he helped give the Tigers much-needed momentum before halftime.

Gardner came up big again in the middle of the third quarter when he hauled in a 43-yard pass from Simmons for a touchdown. The score was Gardner's second and Simmons' third of the night. It put Clemson ahead for the first time by a score of 24-17 with just over 20 minutes left in the game.

Simmons hit Gardner for a third touchdown from 25 yards out early in the fourth quarter to give Clemson a 14-point lead. Gardner later pulled down a 34-yard reception among three Tar Heel defenders to give Clemson a key first down. It was a classic Gardner reception. He is showing that today with similar receptions in crowded quarters for the Washington Redskins.

The Tigers went on to defeat North Carolina 38-24. His three touchdowns tied a Clemson single-game record, which had most recently been achieved by former Tiger wideout Tony Horne against Texas-El Paso in 1997. For the contest, he caught seven balls for 182 yards, which set a record for reception yardage in a single game. Simmons, Rod Gardner was all business at North Carolina in 2000.

Stockstill, Clemson's wide receivers coach. "On the second touchdown, he did a great job of adjusting to the ball. The catch that really caught my eye was the one that sealed it in the fourth quarter. He came down with the ball between three people and stayed on his feet somehow. To be able to stay on his feet just made it a tremendous catch."

Gardner was named the ACC Offensive Back-of-the-Week for his game against the Tar Heels. Gardner's 182 yards was a large part of the season-high 296 passing yards that Clemson threw for in the game at North Carolina. The win improved Clemson's record to 8-0, its best start since the 1981 team went 12-0 and won the National Championship.

Gardner was selected as the ACC Player-of-the-Week according to CollegeFootballNews.com and National Player-of-the-Week by Rivals.com. He was one of 10 semi-finalists for the Biletnikoff Award at then end of the season, given annually to the nation's top receiver.

As mentioned earlier, Gardner made a name for himself as one of Clemson's greatest clutch performers. In addition to the North Carolina game, Gardner had 100-yard efforts against N.C. State, Maryland, and South Carolina. For the 2000 campaign, Gardner hauled in 58 passes for 1,050 yards, which equated to an astounding 18.1 yards per catch. He received All-America honors from College & Pro Football Weekly for his efforts.

His breakout year came in 1999, the first year under Tommy Bowden, when he set a Clemson record with 80 receptions. However, his journey to stardom took an interesting path. He was red-shirted in 1996 and actually played in the secondary during the spring of 1997 before settling in at the wide receiver position.

Gardner's style of play could be best described using one word...physical. He stood 6-foot-3 and weighed 215 pounds during his senior year. In desperate situations, currently the starting quarterback for Clemson, tied a single-game record with four touchdowns passes thrown. Gardner's big day also helped Clemson erase its third-largest deficit ever in a victory.

"On the first touchdown, he just out-ran the guy on the post," said Rick

Clemson often threw the ball up in his direction to see if he could out-jump or wrestle the ball away from opposing cornerbacks. More times than not, Gardner was able to make the catch.

"Rod always did a great job of keeping his body between the ball and the defensive back," Stockstill said. "As a coach, that's what you try to stress. One thing I think people tend to overlook was that he had some speed. You don't make all the deep catches that he did by not running by some of the corners. He competed for the ball as well as anybody I've ever been around. That was a testament to his great body control."

Gardner still holds nine Tiger records. In addition to the two records set at North Carolina, he holds the record for most career receptions, most 100-yard receiving games in a career, and most catches in a single game. His gaudy stats and staggering work ethic would prove to be beneficial for Gardner.

The 2000-01 academic year was a banner year for Gardner. He became the first Clemson football player since Steve Fuller to be named an All-American, receive his degree, and be selected in the first round of the NFL Draft in the same academic year. Fuller accomplished the feat in 1978-79. Gardner was also the recipient of IPTAY's Athlete-of-the-Year award for his accomplishments during the 2000 football season.

In the 2001 NFL Draft, the Washington Redskins selected Gardner with the 15th overall pick of the first round. He made the NFL's All-Rookie Team a year ago and is expected to do big things this year under new pass-happy Head Coach Steve Spurrier. If he performs as well as he did against North Carolina in 2000, expect nothing short of a trip to the Pro Bowl.

Philip Sikes, a senior from Aiken, SC, is a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Gardner caught seven passes for 182 yards and three scores in the greatest game by a Tiger receiver in history.

Note: Clemson had more players chosen to the ACC 50-Year Anniversary Football team than any other school. Throughout the season we will highlight the career of all nine former Tigers who were named. Today we feature Anthony Simmons.

Summer is usually a time of the year associated with relaxation and vacation. Lounging by the pool or taking a trip to get away from the day-to-day grind of work are just a couple of examples of how most people take advantage of time away from everyday life.

Former Clemson Tiger great and current Seattle Seahawk Anthony Simmons has taken a different approach to his leisure time. Simmons, a Spartanburg, SC native, has returned to Tigertown each offseason prior to NFL training camp to work with the Tiger strength staff and continue his goal of earning a Clemson degree.

Clemson Assistant Strength Director Larry Greenlee has spent each offseason since Simmons left Clemson working with the 15th selection of the 1998 National Football League Draft. According to Greenlee, one would be impressed with all aspects of Simmons' career on the field and off, especially when it comes to work ethic.

"Anthony has come back each year and worked extremely hard to improve," said Greenlee. "His professional approach is something that really sets him apart. As a pro, nothing is handed to you. He made a real commitment to come back and work as hard as he could."

The hard work and dedication that Simmons has shown both on and off the field make it easy to see why he was named to the ACC 50-Year Anniversary team announced in July.

Simmons could have made the ACC's all-time team based on his accomplishments as a freshman alone. He led the team in tackles, earned third-team All-America honors by the Associated Press, and was named National Freshman-of-the-Year by United Press International.

During his three-year stint at Clemson, Simmons became just the second ACC player to be named an AP All-American in three different seasons (William Perry was the other). He was a First-Team All-ACC choice for three years, joining Perry and Levon Kirkland as the only Tigers to earn such recognition. He led the ACC in tackles in 1996 and 1997, and finished his Clemson career with 486 tackles, the second-best figure in Clemson history.

He led Clemson in tackles in 28 of his 36 games and was a two-time recipient of the Banks McFadden Award, an honor given to the top college player in the state of South Carolina. He set a Clemson record for tackles in 1996 with 178 and once had a streak of 17 straight games with at least one tackle for loss.

Former Clemson Defensive Coordinator and current Houston Texans' linebacker coach Reggie Herring saw no mystery in why Simmons achieved such great success at Clemson.

"On the field, he came to work everyday and he continues that attitude in the NFL," said Herring. "He missed one practice in three years at Clemson and those work habits are carrying over to the NFL. He possesses tools that God only gives to certain people. Anthony has always had the focus to use those tools and now it is paying off for him."

While Simmons does have great gifts, he still continues to strive for improvement. During the past offseason, he concentrated his training efforts on increasing his speed.

The efforts paid off. "Each offseason Anthony comes back, we concentrate on a different area to improve," said Greenlee. "This past year we worked on his speed. With his strength at such a high level, he wanted to become quicker."

Mission accomplished! During one workout, Simmons posted a 40-time in the 4.3-second range. A time of 4.3 seconds from a 6-2, 240 pound linebacker would surprise almost any strength and conditioning coach.

"I was surprised," admitted Greenlee. "That is a great time for Anthony. But the thing that really stood out was that it came at the end of a pretty grueling workout. His goal of increasing his speed was certainly attained this summer."

Simmons has also worked hard in the classroom during his return trips to Clemson. After turning professional after his junior season, he made it clear he would return to earn his degree. He continues to work toward that goal.

"I made a promise to my parents that I would come back and get my degree from Clemson," said Simmons. "It means a lot to me and it means a lot to them. I'm not going to play football forever. Although I should be set financially, I want to be productive in the business world when my football career is over. You need the degree."

Herring has no doubt that Simmons will earn his degree. "Anthony is a man of his word," said Herring. "He made a promise to his family that he would finish his degree and become a strong alumnus. It draws attention to young people that even if you have dreams of becoming an NFL player, it still is important to get your degree. I'm proud of Anthony. He is a man of his word."

Simmons' work both academically and athletically during his summers at Clemson has also served another purpose. Current Clemson players have the opportunity to see a current NFL player work as hard as possible to improve.

"Anthony's work ethic and dedication are noticed by our current players," said Greenlee. "When they are working out, they see him giving everything he has to improve. That goes a long way in having our guys work as hard as possible to get ready for their upcoming season."

Simmons was poised for a Pro Bowl season in 2002, but suffered an injury in the preseason and has yet to take the field in the regular season. In 2000, he led the Seahawks in tackles with 147, then followed that with a team-best 127 stops in 2001. With his increase in speed and quickness, most feel he could have an impact on Seattle's drive for a playoff berth this year when he finally returns to the lineup. Simmons should return to the Seahawk lineup by early November.

It is safe to say that he has spent some of his rehabilitation time catching a Clemson game from a distance. "We usually talk once a week during the season," said Greenlee. "I know he tries to watch Clemson play on television every chance he gets."

Anthony Simmons, one of the best linebackers in ACC history, has become a standout in the NFL thanks to his off-the-field dedication and work ethic.

Sanford Rogers worked in the Clemson Sports Information Office from 1989-93 and is now employed in sales in Greenville, SC.

A Message to Our Boosters

Tiger fans, thank you for your support! As a fan, NCAA rules could define you as a "representative of our athletics' interests" or a "booster". Once identified as one, you hold this identity forever.

NCAA rules limit our booster's actions. Boosters may not try and persuade prospects, their family members or their coaches to attend a particular school. Additionally, boosters may not provide or arrange financial assistance, transportation or living expenses for a prospect, their families or friends. There are some NCAA rules that do allow boosters to help Clemson. For example, if you know of any outstanding prospects in your area, send information such as newspaper clippings to our coaches and let them contact the prospect on Clemson's behalf. You can also join IPTAY. IPTAY helps provide scholarship costs for Clemson's ten men's and nine women's teams.

Once a prospect becomes a college athlete NCAA rules prohibit anyone other than their family to provide benefits. A full scholarship covers basic educational needs, and those student-athletes with severe financial need can receive Pell grants up to $4,000 and they also can use funds from NCAA special assistance. NCAA rules strictly prohibit booster involvement with prospects and student-athletes. The penalties for ignoring these rules are too great. Help Clemson athletics operate free of booster problems. If you suspect a violation or have questions about a particular NCAA rule, call Clemson's compliance services.

Gambling

The Clemson athletic department asks for your cooperation in protecting intercollegiate athletics from the perils of gambling. Not only does the NCAA and Clemson oppose all forms of legal and illegal sports gambling, but it's against the law!

Did you know that sports wagering or gambling activities by Clemson athletic administrators, coaches and student-athletes are violations of NCAA rules and regulations? Please refuse to engage in these activities since penalties for these violations are severe. Violating these rules can result in permanent dismissal, suspension or loss of eligibility for your beloved Tigers.

The NCAA defines wagering and gambling activities as:

- Providing information to individuals involved in organized gambling activities involving NCAA events.
- Soliciting or accepting a bet for cash or prizes on Clemson or any NCAA team.
- Placing bets on any NCAA or professional athletic events through a bookmaker, parlay cards or other means used by organized gambling.

Amateurism & Agents

NCAA rules require student-athletes to maintain their amateur status if they want to participate in NCAA competition. Student-athletes will lose their amateur status if they use their skill for pay or accept promise of future pay while still competing for Clemson. Additionally, student-athletes may not sign a contract with a pro team, receive a salary or expenses from a pro team, compete on a pro team or ask to be placed in a pro draft, or enter into an agreement with an agent.

Once a student-athlete's intercollegiate athletic career is over and the student-athlete has interest in playing professionally, an agent is hired for the purpose of marketing their athletics ability. However, if a student-athlete with eligibility remaining enters into a verbal or written agreement with an agent before their eligibility is complete, they will no longer be able to compete for Clemson. In addition, student-athletes may not accept transportation, clothing, meals, lodging, or any benefit from an agent or agency without jeopardizing their eligibility. Please do not contact our athletes on behalf of any agent or agency.

Conclusion

NCAA rules are complex and at times may seem confusing. If you have questions or would like additional information regarding NCAA rules, contact Clemson compliance services through our e-mail, compliance-L@clemson.edu, or through our website at www.clemsontigers.com/compliance/clem-compliance.html. Again, thank you for your support of Clemson and its athletics' program!

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcast each football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three programs, "Tiger Tailgate Show," "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Fifth Quarter Show."

A Clemson tradition since the 1970s, the "Tiger Tailgate Show," is a two-hour entertainment and interactive program produced from the stadium. In year's past, it has been done from the lawn at Littlejohn Coliseum in front of the Tiger statue. But due to renovations at that facility, the "Tailgate Show" will be produced on the lawn (at the corner) closest to Death Valley.

The program begins two hours prior to kickoff. Popular Greenville entertainers Love and Hudson along with Joe Erwin and Duane Evans play host to the show that is attended by many Clemson fans. It is the gathering place on gameday. Interviews with former Clemson players, games, display items, and pre-game excitement are all part of the program.

The game broadcast is anchored by Jim Phillips, the longtime voice of the Tigers. The legendary voice and Clemson Hall of Famer is in his 35th year broadcasting Clemson athletics. His career dates to 1968 when he provided commentary on games coached by Frank Howard. He is one of the most respected announcers in the nation and is the dean of all ACC announcers.

Joining Phillips in the broadcast booth will be former Clemson quarterback Rodney Williams. Also a member of the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame, Williams worked the sidelines on Clemson broadcasts for six years. With Mike Eppley's retirement from the broadcast booth, Williams will join Phillips and provide color commentary. Williams is the winningest quarterback in Tiger history. He led the Tigers to 32 wins from 1985-88, including bowl wins over Stanford, Penn State, and Oklahoma.

Providing commentary and updates from the sideline will be Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg was a member of the broadcast team last year providing score updates during the game and by playing host to the post-game show. Yanity is one of the most knowledgeable broadcasters in the South and has covered Clemson football for over 15 years.

As has been the case in the past, the gameday broadcast will begin with the Tommy Bowden Pre-game Show. Bowden will meet with Jim Phillips to provide Clemson fans with the latest lineup and strategy information as his Tigers prepare for another competitive contest. Phillips, Williams, and Yanity will also provide a last minute scene setter that will include the latest lineup and weather information.

After the game, Yanity and former All-ACC Tiger Will Merritt will play host to the Fifth Quarter Show. Interviews with Coach Bowden and assistant coaches Brad Scott and John Lovett also will be included. An added feature will include lockerroom interviews with Clemson's top players that day. A rundown of the game's statistics and audio highlights will be provided. Scores and reports from the day's top games will also be provided.

Fans can also follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls" from area Ingles Grocery Stores, a one-hour program with Bowden and Phillips. This broadcast will air live each Thursday evening from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. It can be heard on most of the Clemson Tiger Sports Properties network affiliates. The show will begin Thursday evening, August 29.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties also will produce the Tommy Bowden Show, a recap of the previous game's highlights. The program will give Clemson fans insight into the coaches decisions during the previous game and take an up close and personal look at some of your favorite players.

Broadcast Team

Jim Phillips, Voice of the Tigers

- Dean of all play by broadcast in the ACC, the 2002 football season will be his 35th behind the microphone.
- Inducted into the Clemson Hall of Fame in 1992, his Silver Anniversary season at Clemson.
- Has called 395 Clemson football games in his career entering the 2002 season.
- The voice of Clemson baseball since 1991 and women's basketball since 1995.
- Five-time selection as South Carolina SportsCaster-of-the-Year.
- Presented the Master Broadcaster Award by the South Carolina Association of Broadcasters in 1992, its highest honor given.
- In 1998, he received the Marvin Skeeter Francis Award from ACSWA for his service and contributions to ACC athletics. He was the first radio personality to receive this award.
- Broadcast his 1,000th Clemson Men's Basketball game at the 2002 ACC Tournament in Charlotte.
- Has never missed broadcasting a Clemson Men's Basketball game in Littlejohn Coliseum, a streak that dates to his first year at Clemson in 1968-69.
- Has served as television host of Clemson Coaches shows for many years. Also served as sports director of WYFF-TV in Greenville from 1968-80.

Rodney Williams, Color Commentator

- Winningest quarterback in Tiger history, he led the Tigers to 32 victories from 1985-88.
- Only Clemson quarterback to be MVP of two different bowl games and to win three bowl games. Led the Tigers to the 1986 Gator Bowl win over Stanford and the 1988 Citrus Bowl win over Penn State.

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last three years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer throughout his/her career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

BREAK FROM TRADITION.

A bride is standing outdoors on a stone path, smiling. She is wearing a long, flowing wedding dress with vertical stripes of various colors including red, orange, yellow, green, and blue. She is also wearing a long white veil and white gloves. She holds a bouquet of colorful flowers. The background is a lush green garden.

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness and color haven't gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn't going to be cheap. With Voridian's Chromspun® and Estron® yarns — you can have your cake and eat it too.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. It complements our popular Estron line of white yarns. Plus, we make all Voridian® yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That's a tradition we're proud of.

If you're from around here, you know the music of a mountain creek. You know the green river rocks are slicker than the orange ones. And you know that with a few flat rocks and some falling water, Mother Nature makes a pretty amazing playground. You see, we think it's our job to know you well, to discover things that don't appear on a checking account application or the back of an ATM card. We believe knowing people better makes us... well, better people. You'd be surprised how it makes us a better bank. Carolina First. We have a pretty good sense of where we are.

Vickery Hall

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletic Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first facility in the country built solely for the all-around academic support of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete's needs.

Academic Commitment

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

Clemson student-athletes posted an overall GPA of 2.85, the highest on record, for the spring semester of 2002. A record 37 student-athletes earned selection to the President's List with a perfect 4.0 for the semester, while 104 made the Dean's List, just one off the all-time semester record.

Two-hundred-and-twenty-one Clemson student-athletes earned at least a 3.0 or better for the semester, meaning nearly 50 percent of all Clemson student-athletes were on the academic honor roll. Seven of the 15 programs had a semester GPA of at least 3.0.

The Clemson football team had a 2.56 team GPA for the semester, second best on record behind the 2.58 achieved in the spring of 2001. Each of the top-five semester GPAs achieved by the Clemson football program have taken place within the seven semesters Tommy Bowden has served as head coach. Nine Clemson football players graduated last year, meaning 18 of the 22 seniors who dressed for the Humanitarian Bowl earned their degrees.

Many prominent Clemson athletes were named to the academic honor roll. Kyle Young and Chad Carson, both first-team Academic All-Americans in 2001, concluded their Clemson academic careers with a perfect 4.0 semester in the classroom.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery Hall is the tutorial program.

Of 450 tutoring programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted all three levels of certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of only six schools across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Dick Hendley Micro-computer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on the weekend. Vickery Hall is now a "wireless facility" which allows students in the building with laptop computers to access the campus mainframe without physically plugging into the system.

The Dick Hendley Computer Lab is one of the areas of Vickery Hall that make it one of the top facilities of its kind nationally.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

Personal Development Commitment

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

Career Development Commitment

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the Vickery Hall staff. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement

Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

The SAEP career assistance program has a full-time career counselor housed in Vickery Hall. Unique to our program, the career counselor is a member of the Michelin Career Center staff as well as the Student-Athlete Enrichment staff. This link between athletics and the Michelin Career Center provides student athletes the most up-to-date information and resources in career development and preparation for entrance into the job market upon graduation.

Service Commitment

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top Six by the ACC.

LifeLine, another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LifeLine has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators, we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he or she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with members of the media.

Athletic Commitment

Nine Clemson athletic teams posted top-25 finishes in 2001-02, contributing to Clemson's #27 finish in the Sears Director's Cup. Clemson set a school record for points scored in that national ranking and the finish was its best in four years. Clemson had 29 All-Americans, its third-highest total ever.

Clemson had a spring to remember as the Clemson golf, men's track and field, and baseball teams all finished in the top four in the nation. It marked the first time in school history that three different sports finished in the "Final Four" in the same spring. Clemson was the only school in the nation to finish in the top four in all three of those men's spring sports. The women's track and field and rowing teams also finished in the final top 25 during the spring.

Clemson boasted some of its greatest athletes in history in 2001-02. Clemson became the second school in history to have the National Player-of-the-Year in golf and baseball in the same academic year. D.J. Trahan won the Jack Nicklaus Award as the top player in college golf, while baseball shortstop Khalil Greene was national Player-of-the-Year according to the Baseball Coaches Association, Collegiate Baseball, Baseball America, and many other services. Women's track and field All-American Jamine Moton won the NCAA Outdoor championship in the hammer throw.

WE'RE NOT THROWIN' UP BRICKS

South Carolina Steel Corporation had the ideal game plan for Littlejohn Coliseum when the Tigers needed a new roof. We teamed with C.P. Buckner to provide an innovative solution for a complex, schedule-driven dilemma.

Replacing the Tigers 90,000 square foot roof structure with 950 tons of steel in 10 weeks wasn't easy. In fact, many doubted the Tigers could start their new season in Littlejohn.

South Carolina Steel Corporation and C.P. Buckner beat the shot clock and scored, replacing the roof with a stronger, better looking structure.

With over 50 years of experience designing and building structural steel solutions, South Carolina Steel Corporation knows the game. The next time you need to score big, call us at 864-244-2860.

IPTAY Endowment Program

IPTAY is widely regarded nationally as the father of Athletic Fundraising. It all started in 1934 and from a private meeting of a small group of Clemson supporters has sprung into an organization that raised a record $16 million in 2001. The organization plays a major role in ensuring that all 19 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships offered by the NCAA.

The organization also has helped finance facilities that contribute to the well-being of student-athletes on and off the field. Vickery Hall is a 27,000 square-foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. It is a major reason Clemson student-athletes have had their highest cumulative GPA on record for five consecutive semesters.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson, currently helping more than 40 students at Clemson.

IPTAY Executive Director George Bennett has continued to keep Clemson among the best in the nation in terms of fund-raising by the establishment of the IPTAY Endowment Program. In April of 1994, he kicked off the beginning of the endowment of positions program at the 85th birthday celebration for former Clemson Coach Frank Howard. The endowments are secure with a $100,000 donation paid over a five-year period.

"This is a chance to broaden the horizons of IPTAY," said Bennett. "It gives an individual or a group of people an opportunity to endow a position that meant something during their college days, or to honor a person at a position. The money being endowed is going to secure our future as the interest is used to carry on our program forever."

The first endowment was for the head football coach position to honor the legendary Frank Howard. Howard coached football at Clemson 39 years, 30 as the head coach. During his tenure, the Tigers won 165 games, 100 of which were against conference foes.

"Former players and friends of Coach Howard made donations over the cost of attending the celebration program and that was enough for the endowment. Their gifts were a way of permanently thanking Coach Howard for all that he did for Clemson."

"Following Coach Howard's birthday party, we began to look for an individual to help us support and promote the program, and Bill Hudson's name came up. He was an outstanding player at Clemson who has been equally successful in the business world. We went to him and explained the program and its goals, and that we were looking for his leadership to help get the program going, and he accepted."

Hudson, a 1956 Clemson graduate, was a three-year letterwinner at tackle who played professionally for the Montreal Alouettes, the San Diego Chargers, and the Boston Patriots. He earned Pro Bowl honors in 1962. Mr. Hudson sees this program growing into a large part of Clemson's athletic funding.

"When other people see information on the endowment program and learn what it is about this program will grow. Success builds on success. People who are looking to honor a friend or family member now have a great means to do that."

Besides the Hudson's family endowment, four other football endowments were made, and one managers position in the first year. Now there are more than 90 positions endowed. The goal of the program is to get every position endowed.

"From the free safety to the #3 player in women's tennis, we hope to have every position endowed," said Bennett.

"We will likely use the Avenue of Champions as a physical place to honor these people further for the positions they have endowed. That will have plenty of space, so we will be working to have as many endowments across all of our sports."

"The personal satisfaction that they helped Clemson University, specifically the athletic department, and that they are securing its future are the main reasons for becoming involved."

And with more involvement, Clemson University will have a very secure future for generations to come.

CLEMSON Athletics

Launches a $82 Million Athletic Facilities Improvement Campaign

TIGER

PRIDE

Tiger Pride Will Fund Memorial Stadium and Athletic Facility Upgrades that Began in the Year 2000

For the first time in Clemson history, the Athletic Department has entered into a five-year, $82-million capital campaign designed to bring the University's athletic facilities into the 21st century.

Those interested in learning more about Tiger Pride should contact the IPTAY office at Clemson University at 864-656-2115 or visit www.clemsontigers.com.

by Tim Bourret

For the first time since his first season as head coach, when he became just the fourth first-year ACC coach to win 20 games in his rookie season, Larry Shyatt has balance on his roster. Clemson's 2002-03 basketball club will feature a roster of five seniors, two juniors, four sophomores, and four freshmen. Like that 1998-99 club, he also has balance on the court, as he has scoring potential inside and outside.

Statistical balance is certainly important in this day and age of college basketball, but Shyatt centers on team balance in another area as being just as important. "We have balance in leadership entering this season and that is something we have lacked the last three years," said Shyatt, who is in his eighth year at Clemson as an associate or head coach.

"We have five seniors (Edward Scott, Ray Henderson, Tomas Nagys, Walker Holt, Jermel Douglas), and all five are on track to graduate. We have seniors in every area, so there are leaders at each position. It is important for the young players to have someone at their position to serve as a guiding light. We have not had that the last three years, with just one senior on the entire team each year."

"Certainly, two of the prime leaders will be Edward Scott at guard and Ray Henderson up front. They, along with Tomas Nagys, are four-year players who have logged a lot of playing time against ACC competition. Scott has a high level of respect after earning All-ACC honors last year, and the same goes for Ray Henderson after finishing second in the league in rebounding."

Shyatt hopes his personnel experience is finally ahead of the ACC curve. The Tigers have three returning starters, 10 returning lettermen, and three talented and "experienced" scholarship freshmen on the club for 2002-03. The ACC just concluded a season in which it had the NCAA Champion (Maryland), the dominant #1-ranked team for most of the season (Duke), plus two other teams that were ranked throughout the season and won at least 21 games (Wake Forest and N.C. State).

The ACC returns just four of its top-21 scorers from last year. Two of the four are Clemson players (Scott and Chris Hobbs). Only five of the top 13 rebounders return, and two of those players are Tigers (Henderson and Hobbs). Scott is one of just four players returning from among the 15 players who made the First-, Second-, or Third-Team All-ACC team. Overall, Clemson returns 64 percent of its scoring, 78 percent of its rebounds, 72 percent of its assists, 90 percent of its blocked shots, and 68 percent of its playing time from a year ago.

One preseason publication, Lindy's, selected Scott, Hobbs, and Henderson as among the top-20 players in the nation by position, a first for the Clemson program in any publication since Shyatt has been at Clemson.

"When you look at the programs and their corresponding history in this conference, you realize some programs are always going to be strong no matter what the experience level of their returning players," said Shyatt. "But, this year we enter the fray with as much experience, depth, and leadership as we have had in the last four years. Hopefully that will translate into a continued improvement in the victory category and our goal of returning to postseason play."

In evaluating his prospects for the 2002-03 season, Shyatt feels an improvement from a defensive standpoint will be the biggest factor in reaching the postseason. Clemson was seventh in the ACC in scoring defense and last in three-point field-goal percentage defense last season. Clemson coaches decided not to name a defensive player-of-the-year for the 2001-02 season.

"Defense is the area that we need to show the most improvement," stated Shyatt. "That said, defense is a function of maturity and intellect, and when you look at our roster, we certainly should be improved in that area. Hopefully, that will lead to an improvement defensively."

"The keys on defense will be the leadership shown by Scott and Henderson. The game starts with Edward's defense and him making that a #1 priority in the preseason. His defense and intensity must be contagious throughout the entire team. The same goes for Ray Henderson on the inside."

While defense was an acknowledged weakness of the Tigers last year, rebounding was a team strength, and that should be the case this coming season. Clemson led the conference in rebound margin with a +5.1 margin for the season, the third-best rebound margin in Clemson history. The Tigers also ranked second in the ACC in offensive rebounding. Each of the top-four post players return this season. Lindy's ranked Clemson's frontcourt as one of the top 10 in the nation.

"Rebounding is a product of a team's level of desire," said Shyatt. "We had that last year, we were out-rebounded just seven times in 30 games. We had as good a foursome of frontcourt rebounders as anyone in our league last year. We are happy to have all four back, plus the return of Steve Allen and the addition of Akin Akingbala. I think we can be excellent in this area of the game. Hopefully, this group can convert free throws at a higher rate than they did last year. Had we made 70 percent of our free throws last year, we would have made the postseason."

Backcourt

Scott, a second-year team captain, is not only the leader of the backcourt, but the leader of the entire team. A Third-Team All-ACC player a year ago, Scott is the best combination scorer and playmaker at Clemson since Chris Whitney (1991-93), who is entering his 10th year in the NBA. At times last year, Scott's simultaneous brilliance in both areas sent media to the Clemson and ACC record books to document his performance.

Edward Scott ranked third in the nation in assists last year with 7.93 per game and also averaged double figures in scoring. He was the first player in Tiger history to average at least seven assists and average double figures in scoring.

His 30 points and 16 assists in Clemson's incredible 118-115 double-overtime victory over #17 Wake Forest marked just the second time in ACC history that a league player had at least 30 points and 15 assists in the same game. In the regular-season home finale against Florida State, he nearly recorded a triple-double, as he stuffed the stat sheet with a career-high 36 points, eight rebounds, and seven assists. The point total was the highest by a Clemson point guard in 32 years.

For the year, Scott averaged 11.9 points and 7.9 assists per game. His assist average was the best in Clemson history and third-best in the nation during the 2001-02 season, just behind T.J. Ford (Texas) and Steve Blake (Maryland). His 238 assists were a school record for a player who averaged at least 10 points per game. His 4.9 rebounds per game were the highest average by a Clemson point guard since the 1959-60 season.

"When you look at the list of returning players, Edward, Travis Watson of Virginia, Josh Howard of Wake Forest, and Steve Blake of Maryland, he would have to be considered one of the leading candidates for All-ACC honors," said Shyatt. "They are the returning players who were ranked among the top-15 players last year. Edward makes a contribution in so many areas. Leadership is certainly significant. We hope his enthusiasm for all aspects of the game will spread through our entire team. We rely on him to do a lot for this team, but he welcomes the challenge."

A prime candidate to be Scott's runningmate in the backcourt is sophomore Chey Christie. As a freshman, Christie had flashes of brilliance, including a 21-point performance at #1 Duke in December that featured a 7-8 shooting performance. He also was a major factor with 16 points off the bench at Penn State in December. But, an ankle injury slowed him at midseason. He concluded the year averaging 5.3 points per game, sixth on the Clemson team, but he had a 7.8 scoring mean, including 11 at North Carolina in the regular-season finale, over the last seven games.

Shawan Robinson is one of three first-year scholarship freshmen who could have an impact on the 2002-03 Clemson team. Because of his versatility in the backcourt, where Clemson must replace 2001-02 double-figure scorers Jamar McKnight and Tony Stockman, Robinson might have the best chance to make a strong contribution early in the year.

Robinson, a native of Raleigh, NC, was an all-state player in North Carolina and averaged 24 points and five rebounds per game at Leesville Road High. He helped Leesville Road to the state championship as a junior. He is the son of a coach, always a good sign when it comes to fundamentals. His father, Darryl, is the head coach at Leesville Road High. This past summer, he was the MVP of the North Carolina High School All-Star game.

Walker Holt and Jermel Douglas are two seniors who have been a significant part of the Clemson program the last four years. Their leadership on and off the court will be an important ingredient in a successful 2003 campaign. Holt has played 41 games in his career, including a start in an ACC game at Maryland as a freshman. He has 40 points and 36 rebounds in his 239 career minutes as a Tiger. Douglas came back to the team last year after taking a year off to work on his engineering degree. He scored 11 points last year, hitting 4-6 shots from the field in 15 minutes of action. Beau Shay will also make contributions as a reserve guard.

Olu Babalola will be a challenger for playing time at the three-spot, but the 6-6, 245 pounder is also capable of playing on the inside. Babalola played in 23 games a year ago and scored 31 points. His defensive effort and overall hustle in limited action is an element Shyatt is looking for on a consistent basis from all of his players this year. He won the team's Hustle Award a year ago.

One newcomer will challenge for playing time on the wing this year. Julian Betko is a 6'-5" player from Pennsylvania. He made 58 percent of his three-point field goals as a senior and averaged 22.7 points and 8.7 rebounds per game.

"During the recruiting process, many coaches, including Roy Williams of Kansas, felt Julian was one of the top outside shooting prospects in the nation," said Shyatt. "Three-point shooting percentage has been an area we need to improve over the last couple of years."

Frontcourt

The frontcourt should be an area of strength for Clemson in 2002-03. Strong rebounding numbers have been a hallmark of Larry Shyatt-coached teams. Two of the top three rebounding teams in Clemson history have been established under his watch, and this year's group could join the elite list in Clemson history. That is saying something when you look at the list of Clemson frontcourt players (Tree Rollins, Larry Nance, Dale Davis, Horace Grant, Elden Campbell, Sharone Wright) who have gone on to successful NBA careers.

Shyatt has a strong frontcourt combination in Henderson and Hobbs. Both enter the 2002-03 season ranked among the top-11 field-goal percentage shooters in Clemson history, as both have shot at least 54 percent. Hobbs ranked fourth on the team in scoring as a sophomore with an 11.6 average, while Henderson was the ACC's second-leading rebounder with an 8.8 figure.

Both players have double-double potential. Henderson had nine last year to rank among the top five in the ACC in that category, while Hobbs has seven for his career, including a 24-point, 17-rebound game against #17 Wake Forest. Nicknamed "The Bruise Brothers" by Shyatt, the duo has combined for 871 rebounds and 1,066 points on a career basis.

"We feel our frontcourt will not back down from any ACC team, or any team on our schedule," said Shyatt. "They have the experience and intellect to play with anyone from a strength standpoint. They have worked very hard in the offseason to become even stronger. We didn't rely on any one player offensively last year and that will be the case this year.

But, I do look for improvement from both Henderson and Hobbs because of their work ethic, including increased time in the offseason working on free-throw shooting. They showed improvement in that area last year, but they will shoot a high percentage of our free throws."

Hobbs made 54 percent of his field-goal attempts as a sophomore and is now at 55 percent for his career (201-365). He is sixth on the all-time list, just behind Elden Campbell. Henderson stands at 53.9 for his career and has shot at least 52 percent in each of his first three years.

Nagys is a third-experienced, four-year player returning for the 2002-03 season. The 6-10 frontcourt player from Lithuania averaged 4.9 points and 4.5 rebounds per game last year and now has 315 points and 311 rebounds for his career entering this season. He is a veteran of 83 career games and over 1,000 minutes in the ACC wars. The aggressive inside player draws a lot of fouls and is a 67-percent career free-throw shooter. He ended last season on a high note with 18 points and nine rebounds in the ACC Tournament against Florida State.

Sharrod Ford is a precocious sophomore who also came on strong at the end of last year. In the final game of 2001-02, he had 12 points and 11 rebounds in the ACC Tournament against Florida State, the first Clemson freshman in seven years to record a double-double in the conference's season ending affair. Ford set a Clemson record for field-goal percentage by a freshman (60.6). He made 23 of his last 34 field-goal attempts as well. He concluded the year with 4.5 points and 3.6 rebounds per game in 14 minutes played per contest.

"Sharrod has spent a lot of time with our strength coach, Shannon Patterson, this past summer," stated Shyatt. "He has put on 25 pounds and we hope he will be near 235 pounds by the time the season begins. When he adds that strength and learns to position himself under the basket, he will become a very valuable player in our rotation."

Two other young frontcourt players will be factors for Clemson on the inside this season. Allen is a 6-10, 255-pound center from Fort Lauderdale, FL who saw limited playing time last year. He also added strength and maturity in the offseason and should be a strong contributor this year.

Akingbala, a freshman, has the reputation of a shot blocker, giving Clemson a strong, young one-two punch on the inside with Ford, who ranked 15th in the ACC in blocked shots even though he did not average 15 minutes a game. Akingbala averaged 22 points, 13 rebounds, and six blocks per game at The Brunswick School in Greenwich, CT last year.

Ray Henderson ranked second in the ACC in rebounding last year and is a career 54-percent shooter.

Tim Bourret is Clemson's Sports Information Director and is in his 25th year at Clemson.

CLEMSON TIGERS...

CLEMSON TIGERS
AND BI-LO.
NOW THAT'S A DREAM TEAM!

by Kristin Kelley

The Clemson Tigers will face off against the North Carolina State Wolfpack tonight, and the Tiger Band will be on hand entertaining the fans and energizing the players throughout the game. Tiger Band will continue its new tradition of playing in the amphitheater 90 minutes before kickoff. As the band marches through campus towards the stadium, fans cheer along as goose bumps rise on their arms in anticipation of the start of the game.

The fans look to the "Band that shakes the Southland" to keep them in high spirits during the game, and the band always delivers. The band's dedication and importance to the fans was shown early in the season, as they played through the unlucky weather with the fans cheering along beside them.

Clemson fans will be entertained as the Tiger Band, under the direction of Dr. Mark Spede, performs this week's halftime show entitled "Gospel." The opening selection to be played is titled "Praise," which was originally recorded by Sandi Patti. The second selection will be an upbeat, jazzy rendition of "Jericho." The "Gospel" show will then conclude with "Take My Hand." Dr. Spede indicated that the selections were chosen because they are all "strong musically and very exciting."

The band will perform the "Gospel" show towards the North stands of Death Valley for tonight's game, which will be the first time this season the whole show has not been played towards the South stands. The "Gospel" show is a continuation of a year-long theme. Dr. Spede points out that this year's halftime shows highlight American music styles, and all of the show tunes were written by Americans.

Prior to the start of tonight's game, the band will perform its traditional pregame. Similar to the previous pregame shows this season, the "Washington Post March" will not be part of the agenda. The pregame festivities will begin with the "Orange Bowl March," and then the band will play "Tiger Rag" while spelling out "Tigers" in script. The show will continue with "God Bless America," the "Star Spangled Banner," and the Clemson University Alma Mater.

Following the Clemson Alma Mater, the band will perform the "Orange Bowl March" again and then move into position as they change their tune to "Tiger Rag." The band will wait for the arrival of the team buses at the top of the Hill for the "most exciting 25 seconds in college football." After the players rub Howard's Rock, they will run down the Hill through the band's tunnel, while the band plays "Tiger Rag."

For every home game, Tiger Band selects a feature member or group of band members to whom to dedicate their performance. The band is pleased to feature Band Commander Daniel "Tex" George during tonight's game. George is a senior from Austin, Texas majoring in Geology. He is the section leader of the Clemson University Drumline, and as band commander, he is the highest student leader. His leadership was recognized when he received the Bruce Cook Award for the outstanding student leader. As the featured member, George will have the honor of "dotting the i" when the band spells "Tigers" in script.

Remember that you can take home the sounds of Tiger Band by purchasing the group's CD "Shakin' the Southland."

The CD features 30 famous Tiger fan favorites from previous football seasons. It includes "Sock It To 'Em," "Eye of the Tiger," and the Clemson Alma Mater. The CD is available at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15. To order by mail, send a check payable to CUTBA for $17 ($15 plus $2 shipping and handling) to CUTBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1505.

Kristin Kelley, a senior from Snellville, GA, is a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Clemson Alma Mater

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness
Where the Tigers play
Here the sons of dear old Clemson
Reign supreme alway.

Chorus

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might
That the Tigers' roar may echo
O'er the mountain height.

Band Commander Daniel "Tex" George, a senior from Austin, TX, is the section leader of the Tiger Band drumline.

Can you hear me now?
Good.

Clemson Research

Helping Win the Fight Against Breast Cancer

THERE'S A LOT MORE TO CLEMSON THAN FOOTBALL.

Clemson physicist Huabei Jiang has received a major federal grant to further develop a laser imaging system he created to view breast tissue. Early testing has shown that this technology can spot tumors that go undetected by traditional mammograms and that it can better predict whether such tumors are malignant or benign. Because early detection is a key to surviving cancer, this Clemson research promises to give doctors a valuable tool in the treatment of breast cancer.

by Bob Bradley

Note: Bob Bradley saw 502 consecutive Clemson football games from the time he became the school's sports information director in 1955 until he passed away in the middle of the 2000 season. Clemson has played 549 football games since the ACC was founded in 1953, therefore Bradley saw over 90 percent of the games. Prior to his death, current Clemson SID Tim Bourret sat down with Bradley and asked him to review his favorite Clemson victories. In this 50th year of ACC football, we thought it would be appropriate to run his recollections of what he felt were Clemson's greatest wins. The games are not ranked in any special order, just the order in which they came to Bradley's mind that summer day in 2000.

The Tigers' 22-15 Orange Bowl victory over Nebraska to capture the 1981 National Championship will always be remembered as the crowning moment in Clemson football history.

Clemson 31, South Carolina 27 (November 19, 1977 at Columbia, SC)

We jumped ahead 24-0, but South Carolina came back and scored, and scored, and scored. They went ahead 27-24 with three minutes left.

We took over for one last drive and Steve Fuller came into the Clemson huddle after we got possession and told the team, "boys we are going down the field and scoring a touchdown to win this game."

His first two passes weren't very good and it looked like we weren't going anywhere. But he finally completed a pass to Rick Weddington to keep the drive alive.

He got hot after that. He hit Dwight Clark with a pass on a key play. Then the culmination of the drive was a 20-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Butler, something we refer to around here as "The Catch." Butler made a diving backwards catch with just 49 seconds left in the game, giving us a 31-27 victory.

There might have been an extra motivation for our players on that last drive. That year, Coach Charley Pell would give cigars to the team after a Clemson victory. He started it after we beat Georgia in Athens by stopping the bus at a convenience store on the way back. We hadn't won in Athens since 1914, so it was a special occasion.

That year, someone at South Carolina printed up t-shirts that said "No Cigars Tonight." A lot of the South Carolina players wore them under their uniforms. When they scored to go up 27-24, a lot of them raised up their jerseys and showed the Clemson players and the television audience those t-shirts. I am sure Coach Jim Carlen wanted to wring their necks...especially after Butler made that catch.

Clemson 22, Nebraska 15 (January 1, 1982 at Miami, FL (Orange Bowl))

This game was for the national championship. Nebraska had future Heisman Trophy Mike Rozier, Dave Rimington, the Outland Trophy Winner, and many other talented players. But we had some pretty good players in our own right, with Jeff Davis, Perry Tuttle, William Perry, and many others.

Nebraska scored and cut the lead to seven points, 22-15, when they converted a two-point play from the eight-yard line in the fourth quarter.

But, we held the ball about the last five minutes. Homer Jordan was the key to running out the clock and not giving Nebraska another chance. He made a great run with about two minutes left that gave us a first down. What a run that was, he made so many cutbacks. We held the ball to the final seconds. Nebraska had one last play with six seconds left, but Andy Headen knocked down a long pass.

Homer made it to the dressing room, but he passed out once he got there from dehydration. All the press wanted to talk to Homer after the ballgame, but he was in there for a long time getting IVs. By the time he got out of the training room, it was past deadline for the writers. That's why all the accounts of that game don't have any quotes from Homer. He didn't do any interviews until the next day.

That was certainly a magic night in Miami.

Clemson 40, Virginia 35 (September 24, 1966 at Clemson, SC)

We were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play. We came back on the passing of Jimmy Addison. He passed 75 yards to Jack Jackson for a touchdown that put us ahead. Jackson took off down the sidelines and "Needle" hit him in stride.

That game was memorable because it was the first time that Howard's Rock was in Death Valley. Coach Howard went on his television show the next day and said he told his players prior to the game that if they rubbed that rock, they would receive magical powers. But, if they weren't going to give 110 percent, to "keep your filthy hands off that rock." A legend was born on that day.

Virginia had a quarterback named Bob Davis. He and "Needle" put on quite a passing show, even by today's standards. Both teams threw for over 300 yards, the only game that happened in Clemson history over the first 90 years. Both were named National Players-of-the-Week by some services.

We went on to win the ACC Championship. We wouldn't have done it if we didn't pull off that comeback against Virginia.

Clemson 33, Wake Forest 31 (November 21, 1959 at Clemson, SC)

This was the first very exciting game in Death Valley that I remember after the time I became sports information director (1955). This was just like a tennis match, up and down the field.

The Deacons had us beat in the fourth quarter, but in those days, maybe just that year, the NCAA had a crazy substitution rule stating that you could not re-enter a game until the next quarter. They substituted for quarterback Norm Snead late in the fourth quarter. Snead was a terrific player who went on to play in the NFL with Philadelphia. We turned the ball over, so they had to put a substitute quarterback into the game. On a third-down play, Chuck O'Reilly, the substitute quarterback, threw the ball into the flat and George Usry intercepted.

Usry returned the interception about 75 yards. Two plays later, he ran it in for the touchdown. So, Usry made the interception and then scored the winning touchdown. You wouldn't see that today because no one plays both ways anymore.

When we scored that last touchdown to go ahead 33-31, Furman Bisher of the Atlanta Constitution asked jokingly, "Does anyone remember how the first touchdown (of this game) was scored?" It seemed like it had been a week ago. Of course, games weren't as high scoring in those days because offenses were much more conservative. Today, high scores are a lot more common.

Clemson 12, Vanderbilt 7 (October 11, 1958 at Nashville, TN)

We scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, including the last one on a short run by Harvey White with just three seconds left. It is still the latest Clemson has ever scored a touchdown to win a game. This was a key victory in a bowl season for Clemson.

This was another year we had the horseshoe. We won four games with touchdowns in the fourth quarter and it took us to a bowl game. We almost beat #1 Louisiana State in the Sugar Bowl, but Billy Cannon threw a touchdown pass to beat us.

Clemson 28, Maryland 24 (November 18, 1978 at College Park, MD)

This game was for the ACC Championship and both teams were ranked in the top 11 in the nation.

This was an incredible game of big plays. I can't remember another game with as many long plays. Maryland had a runner named Steve Atkins who had a 98-yard run, which is still an ACC record. Dwight Clark caught a 62-yard touchdown pass from Steve Fuller and Jerry Butler caught an 87-yard touchdown pass, the longest of his career.

They kicked a field goal to make it 28-24 in the fourth quarter and got the ball back. They drove into our territory, but couldn't get any closer and we won.

When we got back to the Greenville Airport there were 7,000 people waiting. Cars were parked all the way to I-85. People were all over the place to welcome the team. It was quite a scene. This victory gave us a 9-1 record and moved us into the top 10 in the polls for the first time since the 1950s, so it was quite a big win, not to mention the clincher for the ACC Championship.

Clemson 29, Virginia 28 (October 10, 1992 at Charlottesville, VA)

The greatest comeback we ever had. Virginia was up on us 28-0 with 32 minutes left in the game. Right before the half, Louis Solomon made a 64-yard touchdown run to give us some momentum going into halftime. The second half, our defense made some adjustments and shut Virginia out.

We made the comeback by running the ball. We had over 400 yards rushing for the day, an unusual way to make a comeback. Rudy Harris had a big day and Rodney Blunt scored a key late touchdown. They just couldn't stop us.

We got the ball back late, down 28-26. We drove the ball up the field on the ground. Nelson Welch made a 32-yard field goal to win the game. It was terrific comeback because we did it on the road against a top-10 team. It is still the greatest comeback by an ACC team against another ACC team.

Clemson 13, Georgia 3 (September 19, 1981 at Clemson, SC)

Georgia came to Clemson as defending national champion. This was Clemson's key regular-season win on the way to our national championship. No one had us in their preseason top 20, we were just coming off a 6-5 season.

Clemson-Georgia is a special rivalry and this is one of the games that made it that way. Herschel Walker had led Georgia to the National Championship the year before and he was a marked man by our defensive players on this day.

The Clemson defense forced nine turnovers on this day, the most turnovers forced in a game in Tiger history. Clemson took a 10-0 lead in the first half on an eight-yard touchdown pass from Homer Jordan to Perry Tuttle and a 39-yard field goal by Donald Igwebuike.

Clemson and Georgia traded field goals in the second half and Coach Danny Ford let the defense take control. Jeff Davis was outstanding this day and followed Walker everywhere he went. Walker ended the day with 111 yards rushing on 28 carries, but he never got into the Clemson end zone.

Georgia entered this game ranked fourth in the nation. It is still the highest-ranked win in Clemson history in Death Valley.

Clemson 10, North Carolina 8 (November 7, 1981 at Chapel Hill, NC)

The thing I remember about this game was the play that Jeff Bryant made in the closing moments. We had a 10-8 lead in the closing minutes and Dale Hatcher punted the ball out of bounds at the North Carolina two. They hadn't driven for a touchdown against us all day, so it looked good for the Tigers.

But Scott Stankavage started to lead North Carolina up field. With 57 seconds left, they had the ball on their 40 and Stankavage threw a swing pass to the right flat. It was incomplete and every player relaxed...except for Bryant. He chased after the ball and pounced on it. Sure enough, the referees said it was a lateral and it was Clemson ball. We ran out the clock and kept our perfect record.

That one play might have helped him become a first-round draft choice, because it showed his alert play. That play was shown on the Saturday night news all over the country because it was the big game of the day in college football. We were ranked second in the nation and North Carolina was eighth, the first time in history two top-10 ACC teams faced each other.

The headline in The Greenville News the next day read "Tigers are 10-8ciuous".

Clemson 17, Ohio State 15 (December 30, 1978 at Jacksonville, FL (Gator Bowl))

Ohio State had a freshman quarterback named Art Schlichter who was a terrific player as a runner and passer. He completed 16-20 passes.

Of course the thing everyone remembers is Woody Hayes hitting Charlie Bauman after Bauman made an interception in the final minute of the game. Charlie wasn't even suppose to be in that passing lane on that particular play. He got knocked backwards, enabling him to make the interception. That was the only interception of his career. He was run out of bounds in the middle of the Ohio State bench, right in front of Hayes and Hayes struck him. I never saw it because I was on the Clemson sideline at the time.

When we got in the locker room, everyone was talking about it. Coach Ford felt bad for Coach Hayes and told the players not to comment, just talk about the game.

I remember telling Coach Ford before the game that we needed to have a press conference the morning following the game, because the game was scheduled for 9:00 PM. Coach Ford's press conference was scheduled for 10:00 AM. At 9:40 AM, the Associated Press reporter came into our press conference to tell us that Hayes had been fired.

Charlie felt badly about the whole situation because he had grown up an Ohio State fan and thought a lot of Coach Hayes. For years, he refused to do interviews about the incident because he didn't want to rekindle the incident and hurt Coach Hayes' legacy. Coach Hayes called him to apologize after it happened. Charlie, who was a sophomore when the play happened, invited him to come down to spring practice, but he never came.

Clemson 21, Georgia 20 (September 19, 1987 at Clemson, SC)

We were down 20-16 with about five minutes left in this game. Rusty Seyle hit a punt that was downed by Chinedu Ohan on the half-yard line. A couple of plays later, our defense swarmed on quarterback John Jackson and tackled him for a safety.

We took the ensuing punt with about five minutes left and drove the ball down the field behind the running of Terry Allen and Wesley McFadden. We drove it all the way to the three yard-line and called on David Treadwell for the winning kick. It got a little harry at the end because we were out of timeouts. We got the field-goal team on the field and Treadwell got the kick through the uprights with two seconds left.

Treadwell was amazing with those winning kicks. He had done the same thing the year before at Georgia, kicking a 46-yard field goal to win 31-28 in Athens. That game should really be on this list also. We only won in Athens twice since I have been watching Clemson football.

Clemson 16, Notre Dame 10 (November 17, 1979 at South Bend, IN)

Anytime you go to Notre Dame and beat them it is an accomplishment. Notre Dame had beaten us at Clemson two years before in Death Valley, 21-17, and went on to win the National Championship.

They weren't as good in 1979, but still had a good ball club. Notre Dame had a 10-0 lead in the first half and was in control of the game. Then a Notre Dame player, Tyree Dickerson, fumbled a punt that we recovered. It changed the momentum of the game.

Billy Lott led the comeback in the second half. He had a 26-yard run that put us up and Obed Ariri kicked three field goals, and we won 16-10.

That was quite a first 11 games as head coach for Danny Ford. He beat Woody Hayes, Vince Dooley, and Dan Devine, all within that time. All three are in the College Football Hall of Fame.

Clemson 34, Florida State 23 (September 9, 1989 at Tallahassee, FL)

This might have been the best performance we ever had. We had them 21-0 in the first quarter behind two 73-yard plays. Wayne Simmons had a 73-yard interception return and Terry Allen had a 73-yard run for a touchdown. Allen's run was amazing because it took place right before the half. We were just trying to run out the clock on a sweep and he went all the way.

We controlled this game the entire night. We had a 34-17 lead with six seconds left before Florida State scored a late touchdown. This was a Florida State team that ended the season #2 in the final coaches' poll. If you talk to Clemson fans, this might have been the most fun they have had at a road game. This was the year after the "puntrooskie" game, so our fans were pretty fired up.

Clemson 26, North Carolina 21 (September 27, 1958 at Clemson, SC)

This was the second game of the 1958 season. We had to come from behind twice the week before to beat Virginia. We had to come from behind three times to win this game against North Carolina. This was Coach Howard's 100th win as head coach. It was the only time that Howard beat Jim Tatum, who was also a Hall of Fame coach. Coach Tatum died prior to the next season.

This victory was important for Coach Howard and for Clemson football. Up until this game, North Carolina always seemed to beat us; they had the lead in the series. But, this win started a string of six-straight wins for Clemson over North Carolina. We still lead in the series today.

Clemson overcame a 10-0 deficit to defeat Notre Dame 16-10 in South Bend, in 1979. Billy Lott had a 26-yard touchdown run in the memorable game.

Today's game between N.C. State and Clemson will feature two of the top junior quarterbacks in the country, in the Wolfpack's Philip Rivers and Clemson's Willie Simmons. Both have shown continued improvement throughout the year and are postseason honors candidates.

With this being the 50th year of the ACC, it seems to be appropriate to take a look at the best individual matchups in Clemson's ACC history.

Bob Davis (QB) vs. Jimmy Addison (QB) Virginia at Clemson, 1966

This was the first time Howard's Rock was present for a game in Death Valley. Perhaps it was the magic of the Rock that led to a magical passing day for both teams and a magical Tiger comeback.

Frank Howard's team trailed by 17 points with 18 minutes to play, and it appeared Clemson was going to lose to Virginia for the first time. Virginia had built its lead behind the passing of Davis, who would end the game with 312 passing yards and 40 more rushing for 352 total, a Clemson opponent total offense record at the time. He had a pair of 100-yard receivers in Ed Carington and Frank Quayle.

Addison led the Tigers back with a scoring pass to Wayne Bell in the third period and a 46-yard pass to Bell that set up a two-yard run by Jacky Jackson. The Tigers then tied the game with four minutes left on a 75-yard touchdown pass from Addison to Bell.

But Davis was not finished. He drove his team from its own 24 to the Clemson 14. But, with under two minutes left, James Tompkins tipped a Davis pass and Phil Marion intercepted. Clemson ran out the clock and won the game.

Addison finished with 283 yards passing, the second-highest single-game total in Clemson history at the time in Clemson's 40-35 win. Both quarterbacks were named National Back-of-the-Week by different services. It was the first time in Clemson history that both teams threw for at least 300 yards in the same game.

Bubba (LB) & Lester Brown (RB) vs. Ted Brown (RB) Clemson at N.C. State, 1978

This game was billed as the battle of the Browns. Clemson's defense was led by Bubba Brown, still the school's all-time leading tackler, and the offense was led by Lester Brown, still the #2-ranked touchdown scorer in school history.

Ted Brown was N.C. State's best player and was recently honored as one of the top-50 ACC football players in the ACC's 50-year history. Earlier in his career, as a freshman, he torched Clemson for 245 yards rushing in a 43-7 Wolfpack win.

Clemson's Browns remembered that game and had a lot to play for in light of the Tigers' 7-1 record and top-20 ranking. N.C. State also had just one loss at the time, as the game attracted an ABC regional television audience.

Clemson won the battle of the Browns, as Bubba had 17 tackles in the contest and was later honored as the Sports Illustrated National Defensive Player-of-the-Week. Lester rushed for 117 yards on 25 carries, and scored a pair of touchdowns. Ted had a solid day with 109 yards and a touchdown, but Clemson came away with the 33-10 win, a big win as the Tigers ran the table over the last 10 games of the 1978 season and finished sixth in the nation in the final polls, then the highest final ranking in school history.

Herschel Walker (RB) vs. Jeff Davis (LB) Georgia at Clemson, 1981

Clemson's biggest home win in history took place on September 18, 1981, when the Tigers defeated #4 and defending national champion Georgia 13-3. The pre-game attention centered around Georgia runningback Herschel Walker and Tiger linebacker Jeff Davis, who was outspoken the week of the game about Clemson's chances. We even put his quotes in the "Today's Game" section of the program, something we would never do today.

But, his belief gave the Tiger faithful hope and the crowd was at a fever pitch the entire afternoon. The crowd had a lot to do with the performance of the defense, which forced nine Georgia turnovers, a record for a single game.

Davis personally tackled Walker six times in the game (see photo) and caused a fumble. Walker did gain 111 yards rushing, but never could score a touchdown, something he failed to do in three games against the Tigers. Davis ended the game with a team-best 11 tackles, including nine first hits in Clemson's 13-3 win.

The Tigers went on to an undefeated 12-0 season and won the national championship. It was the only regular-season game that Georgia lost during Walker's three-year career.

The most hyped defensive matchup in Clemson history took place in 1984, when Clemson had middle guard William Perry and Virginia Tech had defensive tackle Bruce Smith. Both finished the year as All-Americans and were finalists for the Lombardi Award.

The game lived up to its billing in terms of being a defensive struggle. The Tigers blanked Virginia Tech in the second half and won 17-10. Perry ended the game with eight tackles, including two tackles for loss, while Smith had nine tackles and four tackles for loss.

But, neither player had a sack. In fact, you could make a case that a Clemson freshman defensive tackle had the best game with 10 tackles, three tackles for loss, including two sacks. That freshman was Michael Dean Perry.

Peter Warrick (WR) vs. Tony Horne (WR) Florida State at Clemson, 1997

This confrontation did not receive that much pregame hype, but their respective performances certainly did wonders for both players' reputations the rest of the year and beyond.

Horne was a productive senior, but he had never had an all-around performance like he had that afternoon. The film of that game got Horne a tryout with the Saint Louis Rams and he went on to lead the NFL in kickoff-return yardage in 1999 and won a Super Bowl Championship ring. Peter Warrick was a sophomore, at the time, who would go on to become a first-round draft choice by Cincinnati.

Horne had 10 catches for 131 yards, three kickoff returns for 109 yards, and three punt returns for 27 yards. The 267 all-purpose yards is still second best in Clemson history and one of the few times in history a Clemson player has had at least 100 yards in two different areas in the same game. His 28-yard touchdown reception included a dive for the endzone that demonstrated Horne's aggressive style.

Warrick's day included eight catches for a Clemson opponent record 249 yards, plus four punt returns for 123 yards. The 372 all-purpose yards is a Clemson opponent record and best ever by an ACC player. Warrick had a 90-yard punt return and an 80-yard touchdown pass, both in the fourth quarter to leave the Clemson fans and players stunned, as Florida State came away with the 35-28 win.

Woodrow Dantzler (QB) vs. Philip Rivers (QB) Clemson at N.C. State, 2001

Any Clemson fan who witnessed this performance by Woodrow Dantzler will never forget it. His 517 yards of total offense was divided between 333 yards passing and 184 rushing. Had he not been sacked twice for 18 yards, he would have become just the second player in NCAA history to have 200 yards rushing and 300 passing in the same game.

Dantzler completed 23-27 passes for 333 yards, and had six touchdowns, four passing and two rushing. His passing efficiency of 237.6 was a Clemson record. He accounted for 517 of Clemson's 567 yards of total offense, the highest figure ever in a Clemson road game. His four touchdown passes went to four different receivers.

Given the records Dantzler set, and the fact that Clemson won the game 45-37, the performance of his counterpart received little attention. But, Philip Rivers, today's quarterback for the Wolfpack, had quite a performance himself. The then sophomore completed 24-46 passes for 310 yards and four touchdowns. Add that to the 370 yards and three touchdowns he passed for in 2000 and you can see Rivers has had some impressive numbers against Clemson.

Note: Clemson had more players chosen to the ACC 50-Year Anniversary Football team than any other school. Throughout the season we will highlight the career of all nine former Tigers who were named. Today we feature William Perry.

The most legendary player in my 25 years at Clemson is William Perry. This year he was named to the ACC's 50-Year Anniversary team, a fitting honor for a player who made physically impossible plays that were not seen prior to his career and have not been witnessed at Death Valley since.

I was an assistant sports information director at Clemson during Perry's career (1981-84). There has never been a more promotable athlete at Clemson. He had a loveable personality, an omnipresent smile, and a larger than life presence.

Today, he still holds legendary status, even at the professional level. Just two weeks ago he was featured at halftime of the Monday Night Football game between Green Bay and Chicago.

All the stories you have heard about William Perry...they are all true. Here are a few of my personal favorites.

• • • • •

The most often quoted story about Perry during Clemson's National Championship season concerned his infamous lunch visit to McDonald's with Perry Tuttle. Over time, and the magic of the media's frenzy and inflation, writers wrote that he spent $55 at the fast-foot chain in Clemson in one sitting.

Although I was not there when the bill was paid, I was present when Tuttle originally told the story to a local writer. According to Tuttle, then a senior, he offered to treat the then first-year freshman Perry to lunch. The bill between them was $22, still a sizeable amount for two people in 1981.

• • • • •

Yes, Perry could dunk a basketball and could dive off a diving board. You name it, he could do it. He really did go for a swim in Fike one day and he nearly broke the diving board.

During the offseason, he would play pickup basketball games in Fike, he even played in some games against Barbara Kennedy, Clemson's greatest basketball player ever, who was in school at the same time.

Whether he weighed 295 or 350, he could still dunk, it was amazing. Prior to his senior year, he reported at 350 pounds ("Why come to camp in shape, that's what camp is for, to get in shape," he said).

A photographer from Sport Magazine was sent to campus to take a photo of Fridge dunking. A few days before the photographer appeared, Perry assured me he could still do it, even though I had seen on the training room chart that he was still over 350 pounds. But, sure enough, on the day we shot the photo in the Jervy Gym, he dunked until the photographer ran out of film.

• • • • •

While his weight fluctuated, his health did not. You might have thought that at some time he would have suffered a pulled muscle, suffered a knee problem, something. But, according to now retired Head Trainer Fred Hoover, Perry missed just one practice in four years, due to a knee strain his sophomore year. He went to he workout in a yellow jersey, but that was the only practice he sat out in four years.

The lifesize William Perry poster was a hot commodity in 1984. "The Refrigerator" was recently named one of the 50 greatest players in ACC history.

When it came to games, he was always there. He played 45 consecutive games at Clemson after never missing a game in four years of high school. He then played every game his first three years in the NFL, meaning he went 11 straight years without ever missing a football game.

• • • • •

Our favorite Perry play took place in a victory at Death Valley in 1984. In the second quarter, Wake Forest had a fourth-and-one inside Clemson territory and the Tigers were not sure Wake Forest would actually punt. So, Clemson coaches kept the defense on the field.

Wake Forest decided to punt, which meant Perry was lined up over the center. Perry overpowered the center and then ran into the blocking back with such force that he became airborne and moved him backwards into the punter. Harry Newsome's punt went off the backside of his upback and Clemson recovered the ball 36 yards down field from the original line of scrimmage.

It is still the only time a Clemson player has been credited with a blocked punt without actually touching the ball. It is also the reason people are stunned to see Perry with career punt return yards. It was the only play in his four-year career that Perry was on the field for a punt return situation.

• • • • •

Perry grew so fast his senior year of high school that his thighs increased from 31 inches to 33 inches during the season. By the end of the year, his high school coach had to take two pairs of football pants to a seamstress, who sewed them together to create a pair of pants that Perry could fit in.

• • • • •

The William Perry Growth Poster was the most interesting and publicized promotion the Clemson sports information office has ever undertaken. The idea actually came from a printing salesman named Jeff Pratt, who worked for Sports Graphics, a company that was ironically based in Chicago.

Pratt had done a lifesize poster of Paul Molitor, then a young baseball star with the Milwaukee Brewers. He had seen a story on Perry and thought he would be a good subject for a lifesize poster.

We jumped at the promotion and ordered 4,000 posters, 2,000 to send to the media and high schools in Clemson's recruiting area (then legal, now illegal, probably thanks to this project), and 2,000 to sell to the general public. The project cost a little over $10,000, and at a sales price of $5, we were just hoping to recoup our costs over the course of the remainder of the season.

We unveiled the poster during homecoming weekend (October 20 against Duke), selling the posters out of what is now the ticket office. The interest was incredible, as we started selling the posters at Tigerama. We sold all 2,000 posters in 15 hours and had the money (in cash) needed to pay for the project before we had even received a bill.

Perry's nickname, "The Refrigerator" all started on an elevator in Mauldin Hall on the Clemson campus in September of 1981. The elevator was crowded as it landed on the second floor. Ray Brown, then a defensive tackle for the Tigers wanted to get on, but faced Perry in the front of the elevator and determined that there was not enough room for him.

Brown said, "William, you take up almost the entire elevator. I'm going to start calling you G.E. because you are as big as a refrigerator."

Later in the week, Brown related the story to Clemson SID office student assistant Jeff Rhodes (who still works on the football staff crew 20 years later), who in turn mentioned it to Sports Information Director Bob Bradley.

Bradley first used it in an October 1, 1981 press release prior to the Kentucky game. Later in the year, Bradley changed the nickname to "The Refrigerator" because he didn't want the NCAA to penalize Clemson for endorsing a corporation.

The rest is history.

When you place a phone call to P.K. Yonge Developmental Research School in Gainesville, FL, the automated answering system gives the caller the following greeting: "You have reached P.K. Yonge Developmental Research School, home of 2002 Florida Teacher-of-the-Year Randy Scott."

That greeting properly documents the pride that school holds for the recent honor bestowed on the former Clemson linebacker of the 1970s. This past summer, Scott was selected out of a pool of 135,000 teachers in the state. The presentation was made in Orlando at Disney World and the presenter was Florida Governor Jeb Bush.

In this profession, it does not get much better than receiving an award from the brother of the President of the United States. "It was quite an honor," said Scott, who starred at linebacker for the Tigers from 1975-78. "It carried with it a considerable monetary award. That was certainly appreciated, but to be honored from among all the teachers in the state, it was just amazing."

Scott was singled out for his innovative teaching approach, a hands-on, in-the-field style to teaching science to his seventh-grade class at P.K. Yonge Developmental Research School. "I like to take the students outside to get the message across," said Scott, who has been a teacher for only eight years, just two at his current school.

"You can't get the message across by just a normal lecture and note-taking," stated Scott. "We have been teaching the same way for 50 years. We are falling behind Asia and many other countries. We must explore other methods that hold the students' attention and challenges them to learn."

Scott has instituted many unique approaches to his profession. He has been known to don a gorilla mask to introduce students to genetics. Students routinely participate in scientific challenges, such as "Bet You Can't" sessions to promote critical thinking skills and reinforce knowledge previously acquired. To study the skeletal system, his students learn the "Bone Rap", a rap song that identifies the 206 bones in the human body.

One project that received national acclaim concerned a polluted creek located near the school's campus. He secured funding for the Tumblin Creek project through a state Learn and Serve Grant, and enlisted the assistance of the Alachua County Environmental Protection Agency and Gainesville Regional Utilities.

As a result of his students' work and research, pollution levels at the creek decreased markedly within one year of the project's implementation. The Tumblin Creek project has been recognized as one of the 50 National Service Learning Award winning programs and Scott was invited to discuss the curriculum during a national service learning conference in Washington, DC and San Francisco.

"That entire experience with Tumblin Creek was a practical application of what I was teaching," said Scott. "We did many classes by that creek. The students were learning and doing community service at the same time. We actually informed the utility companies about the sewage problem in the neighborhood and they made the improvements because of our study."

Those who knew Scott at Clemson are not surprised by his success as a leader in his chosen industry. In the 105-year history of Clemson football, only one player has been named a permanent captain of three different Clemson teams...Randy Scott.

"You could see early that Randy was a leader," said Al Adams, who was Clemson's assistant sports information director from 1974-78. "I remember going to a freshman game in 1975 and riding back on the bus with him. He said that his class was going to turn the program around."

Scott was one of the key ingredients of the class that turned the program in the right direction. In Scott's freshman year, the Tigers were 2-9. But, by the 1977 season, his junior year, Clemson had an 8-3-1 ledger and went to a bowl game for the first time in 18 years.

Scott led the team in tackles from his linebacker spot with 133, including 18 behind the line of scrimmage.

"If everyone on the team played as hard as Randy Scott, we'd be a national championship contender," said the late Charley Pell prior to the 1977 season.

Evidently, his teammates did play as hard as Scott in 1978, as the Tigers ran off an 11-1 record and were challengers for the national crown before finishing sixth in the final AP poll. Scott again went over the 100-tackle mark and paced the team in tackles for loss with 11.

A two-time All-ACC performer, Scott finished his Clemson career with 382 tackles, still sixth in Clemson history. Clemson defensive All-Americans Keith Adams, Robert Carswell, Terry Kinard, Levon Kirkland, and Jim Stuckey all failed to record as many tackles as Scott had as a Tiger.

His size was a deterrent to NFL teams (he did play a year in the CFL), so Scott went into coaching after receiving his degree from Clemson in natural science. He coached with Pell as a graduate assistant at Florida. He entered the business world and began coaching at the Pop Warner level in 1983. His first team went 0-7.

About eight years ago, he entered the teaching profession and continued his coaching career. He served as a high school athletic director at Gainesville High and continued to coach.

"A few years back, I switched careers somewhat," remarked Scott. "I decided to make teaching the focal point of my career, not coaching."

Now, Scott is firmly established as a teacher. This national award certainly puts an exclamation point on that. He still serves as defensive coordinator at P.K. Yonge, but he is also pursuing a master's degree in educational leadership from the University of Florida.

"I am specializing in curriculum in this master's program," said Scott. "That has been a key to attempting the innovative teaching methods. It really has worked well because it gives me a practical application to what I am studying in graduate school."

Scott has not had much of an opportunity to teach this semester. The demands of the Florida Teacher-of-the-Year are time consuming.

"I have spent most of the fall going to other schools and lecturing other teachers and serving as a goodwill ambassador for the state-education system."

Scott receives strong support at home. His wife, Teresa Blanton Scott, is also a Clemson graduate. He has two sons, Ian and Alik, who have played at Florida.

Through his leadership on the football field, Scott was at the center of a historic turnaround in Clemson's athletic program. Now he is at the center of a landmark educational enhancement in the state of Florida.

Tim Bourret is Clemson's Sports Information Director and is in his 25th year at Clemson.
